PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 18.62% of audit fees during the year under review and 17.81% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. The company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5C scenario. 3. Approve All Employee Share Scheme

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

[newline]The LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. 8b.6. Approve Discharge of Ronnie Leten from Supervisory Board

Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability and the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

8d. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

12. Re-elect Heidi Mottram - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Amber (+), indicating that it falls short of PIRC's expectations. While the company has set out climate targets, assigned board-level accountability and provided a description on the mitigation levers it will use, its intermediate emissions targets fall short as they are aligned with a Well Below 2C pathway. Best practice would be to align targets with a 1.5C pathway. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the sustainability committee.

21. Approve the Centrica plc Climate Plan

[bold]Governance[close][newline]There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability. [newline] There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company. [newline] There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues. [bold]Disclosure[close][newline] The company has not provided a timeline for implementation of its climate strategy. This raises concern over the effectiveness of measuring and implementing progress on emission reductions and implementation of an effective transition plan. [newline] The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios. [newline] The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting. [newline] The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with the marginal cost of renewables being cheaper, and energy security being increasingly seen in terms of non-fossil sources. 3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Change proposed: The main change to the Policy is an increase to the maximum RSP from 150% to 200% of salary. In addition the Remuneration Committee will increase the shareholding requirement of the CEO to 400% of salary (current policy is 300% of salary) to further increase alignment between our Executive Directors and shareholders.[newline] Total variable pay could reach 400% of the salary and is considered excessive since is higher than 200%. On the Annual Incentive Plan (AIP) 50% is paid in cash and 50% defer to shares for a three year period which is in line with best practice. On the Restricted Share plan awards will vest after three years, a period which is not considered sufficiently long term; however, a two-year holding period applies which is welcomed. In addition, dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.[newline] Rating: ACC. Based on the rating abstention is recommended.

5. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the amendments of the Long-term Incentive plan of the Company. Under the amended rules, the value of ordinary shares in the Company (Shares) comprised in restricted share awards granted to an Executive Director of the Company in respect of any financial year will not exceed 200% of their annual basic salary. the malus and clawback provisions contained in the LTIP rules may apply, at the Remuneration Committee's discretion, to any future awards. The Remuneration Committee will have the discretion to determine, when an award is granted, the date on which that award will ordinarily vest. Under the amended rules, if the Remuneration Committee so determines, participants will receive an amount (in additional Shares, unless the Remuneration Committee decides it will be paid fully or partly in cash) equal to the value of any dividends which would have been paid on the Shares subject to an award which vest by reference to record dates during the performance period or the period beginning on the date on which the award is granted and ending on the date on which the award vests or, if there is a 'gross of tax' post-vesting holding period applicable to an award, at the end of the holding period. This amount may assume the notional reinvestment of dividends. Where the Group hires new employees, it may be commercially necessary to 'buy out' the incentives that these employees will forfeit as a result of leaving their employer. To minimise costs for the Company and provide certainty of terms for these 'recruitment awards', the amended rules allow for 'recruitment awards' to be granted under the terms of the LTIP to compensate the new hire solely for the loss of any awards or entitlements they forfeited when they left their former employer. The amended rules allow the Remuneration Committee to apply 'gross of tax' post-vesting holding periods. Under these arrangements, the Shares subject to the awards are only delivered to participants at the end of the post-vesting holding period.[newline]The amendments proposed do not promote better alignment with shareholder. Moreover, PIRC does not consider that LTIPs are an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. An oppose vote is recommended.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total variable pay remains potentially up to 350% of salary for the CEO (150% annual bonus and 200% LTIP) and is considered excessive, exceeding the recommended maximum of 200%. 67% of the annual bonus is payable in cash, with 33% deferred into shares for a three-year period; it would be preferable for 50% of the bonus to be deferred to better align with long-term shareholder interests. The LTIP operates with a three-year performance period, which is not sufficiently long-term, though a two-year post-vesting holding period is applied, which is welcomed. Performance metrics under the incentive plans continue to operate independently, allowing partial vesting even if only one threshold is met, which is not considered sufficiently stringent. Malus and clawback provisions apply across both bonus and LTIP for a period of five years. Executive contracts may be terminated on 12 months' notice by the Company or six months by the Director. STANDARD CHARTERED PLC AGM - 08-05-2025

14. Re-elect Bill Winters - Chief Executive

Chief Executive. On 7 June 2024, it was noted that the litigation involving Standard Chartered relates to claims brought by 226 shareholders of the company. The claimants allege they incurred losses amounting to approximately £1.45 billion due to untrue or misleading statements and omissions in information disclosed by the company to the market. These allegations give rise to claims under sections 90 and 90A of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 ("FSMA"). Given the substantial preparatory work still required, the judge ordered that the trial be postponed to October 2026, expressing doubt that the parties would be ready for proceedings to begin in January 2026. In light of the ongoing potential reputational damage associated with the allegations and the prolonged lead-up to the trial, it is considered that the CEO, as the most senior executive director, holds responsibility for addressing these concerns. 4. Approve Remuneration Policy

The LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics with a weighting of 20% as a means of assessing Group performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 400% for the CFO and 500% for the CEO, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least one year. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.[newline]Rating: ADD. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

Under the plan all employees (including Executive Directors) of the Company and its group are eligible to participate in the Plan. 3 Types of share awards that may be granted Share awards under the Plans ("Awards") may take the form of a conditional right to receive shares ("Shares") in the Company (a Conditional Award), an option to acquire Shares at an exercise price set by the Committee at grant (which may be nil) (an Option) or in such other form which the Committee may determine as economically equivalent. In any 10-year period, the number of Shares issued or issuable under the Plans and under any other employees' share plan adopted by the Company must not exceed 10% of the issued Share capital of the Company from time to time. Awards under the LTIP will normally vest over a period set by the Committee at grant and only to the extent that any conditions (which may or may not be linked to performance) set by the Committee at grant have been met. However, Awards granted to Executive Directors will always be subject to performance conditions to the extent required by the Directors' Remuneration Policy, and the vesting period of Awards granted to Executive Directors will be set in accordance with the Directors' Remuneration Policy. Currently, this means Awards under the LTIP will be granted subject to a three-year performance period followed by a two-year post-vesting holding period, and Awards under the BSP will be subject to a deferral period of three years. LTIP Awards may also be granted subject to a post-vesting holding period. During a holding period, the participant cannot normally sell or transfer any Shares received on vesting, except to cover tax and in other limited circumstances such as in connection with certain corporate events. The Committee also has discretion to implement a holding period through other means, including by delaying delivery of the Shares in respect of which the Award has vested until the end of the holding period. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans which have the participation of Executive Directors. On balance, opposition is recommended.

17. Approve Mondi plc Bonus Share Plan 2025

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Company's Bonus Share Plan. An Award may be granted on the basis that the number of Shares in respect of which the Award vests will be increased to take account of dividends paid between grant and vesting on the number of Shares which vest. The basis for calculating dividend equivalents will be determined by the Committee and may assume notional re-investment of the dividends. Dividend equivalents may be paid in Shares or in cash and may take account of special dividends and/or dividends paid during a holding period if the Committee so determines. In line with the current Directors' Remuneration Policy, the dividend equivalents paid to Executive Directors will be delivered in shares. Under these provisions, the Committee can: i) reduce the number of Shares in respect of which an Award would otherwise vest ("malus"); and/or ii) clawback Shares or cash received by a participant on vesting or exercise ("clawback"). Clawback may be applied within six years from the date on which the Award is made (or three years from payment in the case of a cash bonus payment under the BSP), or such other period as the Committee may determine. In line with resolution 16 an oppose vote is recommended.

20. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 5% of the company's share capital and cannot exceed 18 months. This ensures the buyback remains within a reasonable scope. The time frame and percentage limit align with standard best practices and provide a clear structure for shareholder benefit. It is noted that the proposed resolution in the 2024 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 11.82% of the votes, and the Company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

21. Meeting Notification-related Proposal

It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice. [newline]It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that the proposed resolution in the 2024 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 15.03% of the votes, and the Company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

18. Re-appoint EY the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 28.57% of audit fees during the year under review and 26.76% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary for the year under review is in line with the workforce. The salary of the CEO is in the upper quartile of the comparator group, raising concerns about potential excessiveness. Balance: The CEO's total realized awards during the year under review stands at approximately 59% of the annual salary which consists of only the Annual Bonus. The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay stands at 13:1 which is considered acceptable. Rating: AD, hence opposition is recommended.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total potential variable pay has increased to 650 percent of salary, following amendments to the policy that raise the annual bonus limit from 200 percent to 250 percent of salary and introduce an additional opportunity of up to 100 percent of salary in the form of restricted shares under the Long-Term Incentive Plan (LTIP). This level of potential reward is considered excessive, significantly exceeding PIRC's threshold of 200 percent. The performance period remains three years, which is not considered sufficiently long-term; however, a two-year post-vesting holding period continues to apply. Malus and clawback provisions remain in place across all variable pay components. Rating: ADC

4. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan (LTIP) under which employees and executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, vesting after three years from the date of award. While the company has clarified that the LTIP will operate within the bounds of the approved remuneration policy, including performance metrics and award limits, and that participants will receive a mix of performance shares and restricted shares, concerns remain. Specifically, the performance conditions attached to these awards are not fully quantified or clearly disclosed. This lack of transparency undermines the ability of shareholders to assess the rigour of the performance framework and to hold executives accountable for the outcomes. Without full disclosure of measurable targets, there is a risk that significant awards may be delivered without sufficiently challenging performance hurdles. Given the continued absence of fully quantified performance criteria, and the potential for payouts not clearly aligned with shareholder value creation, it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

7. Re-elect R. Blair Thomas - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent Mr. Blair was appointed as Non-Executive Chairman of the Company pursuant to EIG's right to appoint up to two directors to the Board. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. [newline] The level of gender diversity on the board is below 40%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nomination Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. Opposition is recommended.

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 18.27% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.43% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

The CEO's salary is in the median of PIRC's comparator group. [newline][bold]Balance:[close] The CEO's total variable pay for the year under review was 405.86% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200:1. The CEO's pay ratio was 83:1, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 20:1. [newline]Rating: AD [newline] Based on this rating opposition is recommended.

20. Approve The Reckitt Benckiser Group plc 2025 Long-Term Incentive Plan (the "LTIP")

The Board proposes the approval of an updated equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over at least a three-year period with a holding period of two-years post vesting. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives). Opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose: 3.2

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

There have been some minor amendments to the Remuneration Policy proposed at this year's AGM, however, the Committee believes that the current Policy remains fit for purpose and supports the updated strategy. Therefore there are no structural changes to the Policy. Minor changes have been made to the Policy to clarify its intentions. The maximum variable pay for the Executive Directors is not defined wholly as a percentage of the salary, however, the Annual Bonus alone can reach up to 428% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive in itself when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. In addition to this, up to 300,000 options and 150,000 shares can be awarded for the LTIP in exceptional circumstances, which raises further concerns around excessiveness. One-third of the annual bonus may defer into shares for a period of three years. It would be considered best practise for at least half of the bonus to defer for this period. The potential performance period of three years for the LTIP is considered overly short term, however, a two-year holding period also applies post vesting, which is welcomed. Also welcomed is the inclusion of non-financial performance metrics for the LTIP. Malus and clawback apply to all aspects of the variable pay. [newline] Rating: ADC [newline] Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

1f. Re-elect William Clay Ford Jr. - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1g. Re-elect William W. Helman IV - Non-Executive Director

Non-executive Director, Chair of the Sustainability Committee and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Amber, indicating that it falls short of PIRC's expectations. While the company has set out climate targets, assigned board-level accountability and provided a description on the mitigation levers it will use, it has failed to adequately detail board members' expertise in climate change. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the sustainability committee.

1n. Re-elect John B. Veihmeyer - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. 4. Approve Adoption of Anti-takeover Measure (poison pill)

The board seeks approval for a 'Tax Benefit Preservation Plan' (Plan), designed to preserve tax assets of the company. The Plan is intended to help protect the Company's tax assets. The Plan is intended to help protect the Company's tax net operating loss carryovers and have certain anti-takeover effects. The Rights may cause substantial dilution to a person or group that attempts to acquire the Company on terms not approved by the Board of Directors. Additionally, the Board of Directors may redeem the Rights. The Plan is intended to restrict any direct or indirect transfer of stock that would result in an increase in the direct or indirect ownership of the company's stock to 4.9% or more of the common stock following an event such as a change-in-control, as defined under Section 382 of the Internal Revenue Code. [newline] This authority is considered to be counter to the best interests of shareholders. The poison pill enables management to offer warrants to shareholders during a period of public offer thus implying a threat of dilution to potential acquirers of the company. While this may cause potential acquirers to negotiate with the Board, it may also potentially prevent hostile takeovers and entrench management. Opposition is recommended.

[newline]Moreover, the Chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. [newline]As the Chair of the Compensation Committee is not up for election, responsibility for the company's executive compensation practices is assigned to the longest-serving member of the Committee. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Risks Arising From Voluntary Carbon-Reduction Commitments

Proponent Shareholder: The National Center for Public Policy Research
Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that UPS produce a report analysing the risks arising from its voluntary carbon-reduction commitments, especially relating to Scope 1, 2, and 3 greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. The proposal argues that such voluntary climate-related disclosures expose the company to potential regulatory, legal, and reputational risks, especially in light of increased enforcement activity by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) targeting ESG-related disclosures. It asserts that Scope 3 emissions, in particular, are complex and external to the company's direct operations, making their inclusion in voluntary commitments problematic. It references enforcement actions against investment firms over ESG misrepresentations and argues that UPS's reporting lacks clarity regarding the technological or financial feasibility of meeting its long-term sustainability goals. The proposal notes that there is no global scientific consensus supporting the feasibility of achieving net zero emissions by 2050, citing a 2023 report by the Global Climate Intelligence Group which claims there is "no climate emergency." Citing the risk of "greenwashing," the proponent urges UPS to exercise greater caution and transparency in setting and communicating environmental targets. A vote for the resolution is encouraged to protect shareholder value from ESG-related liabilities and regulatory scrutiny.
Company's Response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that UPS already provides comprehensive, transparent sustainability disclosures through numerous channels, including its annual sustainability report and reports aligned with frameworks such as the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) and CDP. UPS asserts that it does not have a net-zero goal but aims to be carbon neutral by 2050. The company argues that its emission-reduction strategy is grounded in fiscal responsibility and sound engineering principles and that its goals are operationalised through initiatives such as fleet electrification, renewable fuels, and network innovation. Oversight is provided through multiple independent board committees including the Risk Committee and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The company notes its approach includes robust internal controls, third-party assurance on sustainability disclosures, and stakeholder engagement to address progress and risks. UPS contends that the requested report would duplicate existing disclosures and impose an unnecessary burden without providing additional meaningful insights. It reaffirms its commitment to long-term value creation and sound environmental strategy management and concludes that its current approach is sufficient to meet stakeholder expectations and regulatory standards. Accordingly, the Board believes the proposal is unnecessary and recommends a vote against it.
PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the risks arising from voluntary carbon-reduction commitments appears to be a spoiler resolution designed to pre-empt or discourage shareholders from filing resolutions aligned with net-zero or emissions-reduction objectives. While framed as a call for transparency, the proposal emphasises executive caution over decarbonisation efforts, with the apparent intent of introducing skepticism toward corporate climate goals. Rather than supporting accountability and alignment between stated commitments and operational practices, the resolution focuses on undermining the rationale for voluntary targets by casting doubt on the feasibility or legitimacy of climate science. The proposal does not support transparency over climate-related risks in a constructive manner and risks distracting from legitimate concerns around the financial and reputational consequences of climate inaction. Furthermore, the company's existing disclosures on emissions reductions and climate-related risks already provide shareholders with a basis to assess progress and alignment. Therefore, the proposal is not considered to be in the interests of long-term shareholders or aligned with broader stakeholder expectations regarding climate action. Opposition is recommended.

3.. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.54% of audit fees during the year under review and 17.75% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

DEXCOM INC AGM - 08-05-2025

1a.. Elect Kevin Sayer - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1c.. Elect Nicholas Augustinos - Non-Executive Director

Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. [newline] The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. [newline] At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. [newline] As the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. Non-executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years. 2.. Amend Charter allowing for Officer Exculpation

It is proposed to amend the Company's Charter to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The charter currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonise corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however a more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

9. Authorization of the Board of Management to hold a virtual General Meeting and the corresponding amendment to the Articles of Association

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

15. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP as auditor of the Company

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.52% of audit fees during the year under review and 7.24% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. 2. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed changes include: i) Removal of the USD 1.1 million cap on the CEO's salary, and ii) Consolidation of the strategic/personal and ESG components in the executive directors' annual cash bonus into a single category with a combined weighting of 30% (currently 15% each). Total potential variable remuneration for Directors is set at 600% of base salary-significantly exceeding the recommended maximum of 200% and thus considered excessive. Under the LTIP, awards are subject to a three-year performance period, which falls short of being considered genuinely long-term, despite the inclusion of a two-year post-vesting holding period. Award recipients may receive additional payments, in either cash or shares, equivalent to dividends that would have been paid during the vesting period. This arrangement is misaligned with shareholder interests, as shareholders must purchase shares to receive dividends, while participants in the scheme are rewarded without such investment. Although malus and clawback provisions are in place, the Company does not engage employees in consultations on executive remuneration. Shareholding requirements for executives are at an acceptable level. In cases of employment termination, the annual bonus may be awarded at the discretion of the Board, following a recommendation from the Remuneration Committee. This level of discretion is inconsistent with best practice, as it undermines the integrity and predictability of remuneration policy. For individuals classified as 'good leavers,' long-term awards may continue to vest on their original schedule, subject to performance conditions. However, the option to waive time-based pro-rating for service duration is inappropriate and weakens the link between reward and actual contribution. Rating: ADC. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

20. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Company did not disclose information as to how addressed the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

Balance: Total variable pay for the year under was excessive at 410.9% (Annual bonus: 145.8% and LTIP: 265.1%). The ratio of CEO pay compared to average employee pay is acceptable at 15:1. 10.1. Approval of the Aggregate Amount of Variable Short-Term Compensation for the Executive Committee for 2024

The Board of Directors proposes to approve an aggregate amount of variable short-term compensation under the Lonza Bonus plan for the Executive Committee for the financial year 2024 of CHF 5,067,000. [newline] Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

10.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee for the 2025 financial year at CHF F 25.6 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, quantified targets were not made available. In addition, the total variable remuneration may lead to excessive payments. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

18. Approve the Rules of the 2025 DFSS

The Company's existing discretionary share plan will expire in April 2025. The Company is seeking approval of a replacement plan, the Company's 2025 Discretionary Free Share Scheme (the "2025 DFSS") in relation to future awards. It is currently anticipated that awards will be granted under the 2025 DFSS as long term incentives to approximately 4,600 employees in the UK and overseas including the executive directors of the Company. The RemCo may grant Awards over Shares to eligible individuals. An Award (other than a Deferred Share Bonus Award) granted to an eligible individual may not exceed 500% of that individual's annual remuneration. Annual remuneration for these purposes means the higher of (i) basic salary paid by the Group expressed as an annual rate as at the Award grant date; and (ii) basic salary paid by the Group for the period of 12 months ending on the last day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the Award grant date falls. The Remuneration Committee may impose performance conditions on the vesting of Awards. Where performance conditions are specified for Awards, the underlying measurement period for such conditions will ordinarily be three years. Except in certain circumstances, an Award will lapse immediately upon an Award holder ceasing to be employed by or holding office with the Group. Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Österbahr Ventures AB and JOvB Investment AB. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. [newline] Furthermore, at the Company there is no Board level dedicated sustainability committee. Chief Executive. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 17.78% of audit fees during the year under review and 15.57% on a three-year aggregate basis. 14. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

20. Shareholder Resolution: Corporate Relocation.

Proponent's argument: The resolution calls for relocating the company's corporate domicile to the United States, pursuing a Nasdaq listing, stabilising share value through aggressive buybacks, and making a substantial political donation to the Trump administration. The proposal further argues that a Nasdaq listing would "increase the company's attractiveness among international investors and institutional funds" and improve global visibility. In a highly contentious suggestion, the proponent advises that Evolution AB "donate SEK 1 billion to Donald Trump's administration to promote lobbying" and regulatory access in all 50 U.S. states - a measure they claim could "significantly strengthen Evolution AB's market position". To counter share price volatility, the shareholder also proposes a buyback programme underwritten by borrowing, stating: "buying all shares trading below [SEK] 800... would help strengthen confidence in the share and protect shareholders' investments". The rationale is financial and strategic in tone, citing benefits like "freed up capital for investments and dividends," improved liquidity, and a shield against adverse political environments outside the U.S. Company's response: At the time this reports has been drafted, the company has made no comments regarding this shareholder resolution. PIRC Recommendation: This resolution is inappropriate and significantly overreaches acceptable shareholder influence on corporate strategy. While proposals around U.S. market expansion or exploring a Nasdaq listing could merit discussion, the mechanisms advocated - especially the SEK 1 billion donation to a political administration - constitute a severe breach of expected corporate neutrality and governance norms. Additionally, the proposal to stabilise share price through a guaranteed floor enforced by buybacks funded via debt is highly irregular and financially irresponsible. It would expose the company to unnecessary risk and potential regulatory scrutiny, as market manipulation concerns may arise. Opposition is recommended.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Revisit Plastic Packaging Policies

Proponent: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request the Board to (re-)examine its plastic production and packaging policies in light of non-biased, objectively verifiable, scientifically accurate, and economically thorough research. It would be best if a quantifiable assessment of fact-based potential policy changes versus current practices. Shareholder argue the following: "In recent years activist shareholders have sponsored proposals at various companies that urge them to address an alleged "plastics pollution crisis,"¹ which is primarily blamed on "single-use plastics" (SUPs), whose production is generated from the even more demonized "fossil fuels." Evidence shows these claims are exaggerated, distorted, or false. [...] An SUP-caused pollution "crisis" is a myth. For example, the "Great Pacific Garbage Patch" does not primarily consist of SUPs, but rather 52 percent consists of fishing nets, lines and ropes. SUPs represent a tiny fraction of the problem. Plastic pollution is primarily the result of poor disposal practices, not production."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "We are committed to transparent sustainability reporting, having published an annual sustainability report for more than a decade. The report is currently titled the "Sustainability & Social Impact Report" and is made available on our corporate website. It includes detailed information about our 2025 Sustainability & Social Impact Strategy (including our ambitions, the actions and targets that support our ambitions and our progress against those targets), sustainability governance and stakeholder engagement. In the section of the report entitled "Preserving Our Environment" we elaborate on our plastic production and packaging policies, including our goals, progress against our goals and partnerships. Our existing plastic production and packaging policies are based on objective scientific research and our existing disclosures provide our stockholders the information they need to assess our efforts and progress. Therefore, the re-examination and report requested by the proponent would be an unnecessary use of time and resources without providing any meaningful additional information. Given our existing rigorous processes and public disclosure in this area, the Board does not believe that implementing this proposal would benefit our stockholders."

PIRC analysis: The proponent presents a politically charged counter-narrative that disputes established scientific consensus around plastic pollution, downplaying the role of SUPs in environmental degradation. While the proposal advocates for cost-benefit analysis and claims to support "objectively verifiable" research, it selectively cites sources that align with a deregulatory agenda and disregards the widely recognized lifecycle impacts of plastic use. Conversely, the company has demonstrated a robust and transparent approach to plastic waste reduction, grounded in reputable science and supported by independent partnerships. It provides detailed sustainability disclosures, incorporates material circularity principles, and ties environmental improvements to economic benefits-a practice aligned with shareholder interests and good environmental governance. While scrutiny of environmental claims is legitimate, this proposal appears ideologically motivated and misaligned with best practice standards for ESG oversight. It would duplicate existing processes without offering clear shareholder value.

It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. 10. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, based on these concerns, opposition is recommended.

5. Approve Terms for Share Repurchase Agreements

Introduction & Background: Royalty Pharma is seeking shareholder approval to enter into agreements and designate counterparties for the potential repurchase of its Class A ordinary shares. This resolution is a standard corporate mechanism for listed companies aiming to create financial flexibility and return capital to shareholders under appropriate circumstances. By approving this resolution, shareholders enable the company to proactively manage its capital structure, support the share price, and potentially enhance shareholder value through buybacks.

Proposal: The resolution asks shareholders to approve the terms of any agreements and selection of counterparties through which the company may repurchase its own Class A ordinary shares. The repurchase arrangements would be implemented within the framework permitted by law and in accordance with market conditions and company strategy. It does not mandate immediate buybacks but grants the Board the authority to execute them when considered beneficial.

Rationale: While the Board frames this resolution as a tool for capital flexibility, concerns persist regarding its broad scope. The proposal lacks a clearly defined cap on the volume or value of shares that may be repurchased, raising questions about unchecked discretion. Additionally, there is no requirement for ongoing shareholder consultation or transparency once the authority is granted, potentially allowing substantial buybacks without investor oversight. These factors may undermine governance standards and dilute shareholder trust in how capital is allocated. Clarity on strategic intent, limits, and reporting commitments would be needed to mitigate these concerns.

Recommendation: Based on these concerns, opposition is recommended.

1A.. Re-Elect Suzanne Heywood - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. Furthermore, the chair holds another chair position at a listed company; Ms. Heywood is the Chair of Iveco Group N.V. This arrangement raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis and there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time. CUMMINS INC. AGM - 13-05-2025

1). Re-elect Jennifer W.Rumsey - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

13). Appoint the Auditors

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.52% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.07% on a three-year aggregate basis. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. The company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5C scenario. 3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Proposed changes to the policy include increasing the maximum possible award for the PSP from 100% to 150% of the fixed salary, adding a second performance metric of relative TSR for the PSP, as well as increasing the share ownership guidelines from 100% to 150% of the fixed salary. This would allow the maximum variable remuneration for the Executive Directors to reach 250% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended total of 200%. It would be considered best practise for at least half of the annual bonus to defer into shares for a period of at least three years. The performance period for the PSP is three years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional holding period of two years applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The absence of non-financial performance metrics on the PSP is considered contrary to best practise. 3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total variable pay could reach 425% of salary, which is deemed excessive as it exceeds the 200% threshold. Under the Annual Bonus, 50% continues to be deferred into shares while an Executive Director is building their minimum shareholding requirement (300% of base salary for the CEO and 200% for the CFO). Under the Performance Share Plan (PSP), the continued absence of non-financial parameters to assess executives' long-term performance remains contrary to best practice. Such parameters are critical in aligning the remuneration policy with the broader operational performance of the business and recognising the unique roles of each executive. Financial metrics are generally beyond the control of individual directors. The PSP continues to operate with a three-year performance period, which is not considered sufficiently long-term; however, the two-year holding period that follows is welcomed. 20a. Approve Long Term Incentive Plan 2025

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Opposition is recommended.

20c. Authorise Share Repurchase: Class C

Authority is sought to repurchase preference shares (Class C shares) of all preference shares issued. Preference shares typically enjoy privileges such as higher dividends and priority in capital repayment, but often carry fewer or no voting rights. In this case, however, the repurchased Class C shares are not intended for cancellation, but rather for reclassification into Class B shares to fund the Long-Term Incentive Plan (LTI 2025) and previous LTIs. As the LTI and related share issuances were previously opposed, consistent opposition to this resolution is recommended.

20d. Reclassification of Class C Preference Shares into Class B Ordinary Shares

It is proposed to reclassify repurchased Class C preference shares into Class B ordinary shares for use in fulfilling obligations under the Long-Term Incentive Programme (LTI 2025) and earlier incentive plans. Class C shares carry limited or no voting rights and were created solely for incentive funding purposes. Upon reclassification, each resulting Class B share will carry one vote and full economic rights, aligning with the structure of ordinary share capital. However, as the reclassified shares will be used to fund an LTI plan previously opposed, opposition to this resolution is recommended.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 5. Amend Articles: Limit Liability of Certain Officers

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

SUN COMMUNITIES INC AGM - 13-05-2025

1a.. Elect Gary A. Shiffman - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1e.. Elect Ryan M. Lance - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.43% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.03% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. 5.. Shareholder Resolution: Remove Emissions Reduction Targets

Proponent: National Legal and Policy Center (NLPC)
Proponent's argument: Shareholders request the Company to remove all emissions reduction targets covering greenhouse gas emissions of the Company's operations and energy products. Shareholders argue the following: "ConocoPhillips's embrace of politically-driven climate alarmism will destroy shareholder resources both in the short and long run. The Company has only two paths to reduce greenhouse gas emissions: investing in carbon capture and storage technology, or reducing oil and gas production. CCS projects are unprofitable without government subsidies, which are unlikely to remain in their current form under the new presidential administration. That leaves the Company with one path: reducing oil and gas investment. ConocoPhillips has always been an oil and gas company; Reducing production would destroy shareholder resources."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "ConocoPhillips continues to be guided by our value proposition of superior returns to stockholders through price cycles while executing against our Triple Mandate, which sets out three objectives to align our actions with the underlying realities of our business and demonstrates our commitment to create long-term value for our stockholders. [...] We regularly meet with stockholders on a variety of topics, including our climate-related risks and associated target framework. In recent years, during these engagements, an overwhelming majority of stockholders have expressed support for our GHG target framework as well as our actions to reduce Scope 1 and Scope 2 emissions. We have had consistent support from stockholders on our approach to target setting, dating back to our first target set in 2017. [...] Our recent acquisition of Marathon Oil fits within our target framework and is fully aligned with our commitment to develop assets that have a low cost of supply and low GHG intensity, as these are most likely to compete in any future energy transition pathway. Because our 2030 targets are set on an intensity basis, we are able to respond to our sector's dynamic business environment where plans, technology, prices, industry structure and costs all change rapidly."
PIRC Recommendation: The proposal reflects an ideological rejection of mainstream climate science and responsible climate governance. Removing emissions reduction targets would significantly undermine the company's ability to manage climate-related financial risk, respond to regulatory shifts, and meet stakeholder expectations-particularly institutional investors increasingly prioritizing climate risk disclosure and mitigation. The proponent fails to provide a credible or constructive alternative to managing GHG emissions, and the argument that climate strategy is purely political is inconsistent with current global regulatory, reputational, and market pressures. ConocoPhillips's framework, while imperfect, represents a pragmatic and shareholder-aligned attempt to navigate energy transition risks. Additionally, the company's use of intensity-based targets allows operational flexibility while encouraging emissions efficiency, which is a widely accepted approach among energy peers.

It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Furthermore, it is considered that all of these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 7.1. Resolution on Revocation and Creation of Authorized Capital I for Cash Contributions With Option to Exclude Subscription Rights for Fractional Shares and Amendment of Section 4(5)

Resolution 7.1 proposes the revocation of the current Authorized Capital I, which expires shortly after the AGM, and its replacement with a new authorization valid until May 12, 2030. The new Authorized Capital I would allow the Executive Board, with Supervisory Board approval, to increase SAP's capital stock by up to €250 million through the issuance of new shares against cash contributions. Shareholders generally retain subscription rights, but these may be excluded for fractional shares. The exclusion is limited such that newly issued shares without subscription rights must not exceed 10% of share capital. [newline] The authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, our guidelines recommend that authority should not exceed 18 months. Shorter timeframes can help maintain management's accountability to shareholders by requiring them to obtain renewed approval on a regular basis. It gives shareholders the opportunity to review the company's financial position, strategy, and rationale for further buybacks in light of evolving circumstances.

7.2. Resolution on Revocation and Creation of Authorized Capital II for Cash or In-Kind Contributions With Option to Exclude Subscription Rights and Amendment of Section 4(6)

Resolution 7.2 seeks to replace the current Authorized Capital II with a new version, also valid until May 12, 2030, allowing the issuance of shares worth up to €250 million against cash or in kind contributions. It provides broader flexibility, including the ability to exclude shareholder subscription rights in specific cases, such as for fractional shares, to grant shares to holders of convertible bonds, for cash capital increases at near-market prices (up to 10% of share capital), for mergers and acquisitions, and to implement scrip dividends. These exclusions aim to preserve transaction speed, efficiency, and strategic flexibility, while a 10% overall cap helps protect shareholder interests from dilution. 8. Resolution on Authorisation for Virtual Shareholder Meetings and Amendment of Article 20a(1)

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. The CEO's maximum total variable pay is based on a £3.8m limit for the Annual Performance Related Profit Share, which works out to approximately 1,221% of the current salary, and the PSP which is limited to 200% of the salary, which on aggregate s deemed vastly excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. For the Annual Performance Related Profit Share, 50% of any award payable above an amount equal to base salary is deferred into shares for three years. The Shareholders' Remuneration Policy is based on the close correlation between the Brent price level and company performance. While there are no serious concerns with these dividends from distributable reserves, it is of concern that shareholders are remunerated based on the Brent price level, which is in apparent contradiction with the just transition and does not link shareholders' remuneration with the energy transition, rather with a business segment (fossil fuels) which is risky and may see increasing costs in the medium term. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

HOLCIM LTD AGM - 14-05-2025

1.2. Advisory vote on the compensation report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Results: For: 92.4, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose: 7.0

1.4. Advisory vote on the climate report

Governance The policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability. There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company. There is no evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board or senior management of climate-related issues, most relevantly decarbonization. The company has pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy.

Disclosure The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured. The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios. The company has committed to net zero by 2050 but this commitment only extends to part of its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.

This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. The board has proposed a capital range of CHF 659,293,565 and CHF 805,803,246, to last for five years following the date of the upcoming meeting. The restriction of pre-emption rights does not exceed 10% of share capital. However, the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (in itself and together with other incentives). There is a vesting period of three-years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional holding period of two-years applies, which is welcomed. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (in itself and together with other incentives). 3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed change to the Remuneration Policy is replacing the current Restricted Share Plan with a Performance Share Plan (PSP), which has a maximum opportunity of 250% and for 2025 will be based on EPS, ROCE and relative TSR in equal measures. The maximum total of variable pay for the Executive Directors is 430% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. Half of the Annual Bonus earned will defer into shares for a period of three years, which is in line with best practise. For the PSP, the performance period is three-years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional holding period of two-years applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The lack of non-financial performance metrics for the PSP is however deemed contrary to best practise. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all aspects of the variable pay. 10. Amend Articles: Virtual Only Meetings Until 2030

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. EQUINOR ASA AGM - 14-05-2025

10. Shareholder Resolution: Withdraw From All Offshore Wind Projects and that All Bonus Schemes and Salary Increases Should Be Omitted in 2025 for the Equinor Board Members and Corporate Executive Committee

Proponent: Tom Jacob Dybwad
Proponent's argument: The proposal consists of two parts: (1) that Equinor withdraw from all offshore wind projects globally, and (2) that no bonus schemes or salary increases be granted in 2025 to the Board of Directors or the corporate executive committee. The proponent bases the first point on reported financial risks and potential losses tied to Equinor's offshore wind investments, particularly referencing media coverage regarding the Empire Wind 1 project in the U.S., which suggested the company faces billion-kroner write-downs. The second part of the resolution links these financial risks to management accountability, asserting that remuneration adjustments should be suspended due to these alleged misjudgments. Additionally, the proponent raises environmental concerns about offshore wind, citing negative effects on bird life and marine ecosystems from turbine erosion, including microplastics and toxic substances like PFAS and Bisphenol A, which may accumulate in marine food chains.
Company's response: Equinor advises shareholders to vote against the proposal, defending both its offshore wind strategy and remuneration framework. The company acknowledges that profitability in new offshore wind projects is currently under pressure due to inflation and supply chain issues but maintains confidence in the long-term potential of offshore wind, particularly in densely populated areas needing large-scale renewable energy. Equinor emphasizes that it is leveraging its offshore project experience to pursue value-adding renewables growth and expects over a 10% return on equity from its low-carbon portfolio. Regarding compensation, the company clarifies that Board members do not receive bonuses and that executive remuneration decisions are governed by the Executive Remuneration Policy approved in 2023. It further notes that remuneration decisions fall outside the annual general meeting's mandate under Norwegian law, being the responsibility of the Board (for the CEO and executive team) and the corporate assembly (for directors' fees). Thus, both elements of the proposal are viewed as either unjustified or procedurally inappropriate.
PIRC Recommendation: The call for a complete withdrawal from offshore wind projects is overly broad and risks undermining Equinor's strategic position in the transition to low-carbon energy. Offshore wind remains a critical technology for large-scale decarbonization, and the company has existing assets and experience that should not be discarded hastily. On executive compensation, the proposal's demand to cancel bonuses and salary increases reflects a reasonable shareholder frustration with how financial accountability is handled. Greater transparency and clearer links between project outcomes and pay structures would be beneficial. However, this should be discussed through extensive engagement with shareholders concerns. Overall, opposition is recommended.

12. Shareholder Resolution: Plan for How the Company Will Reach the Paris Agreement Goals and Net-zero Emissions by 2050

Proponent: Bente Marie Bakke, Gro Nylander, Guttorm Grundt, and Even Bakke Proponent's argument: The proposal urges Equinor to (1) present a detailed plan outlining how it will achieve the goals of the Paris Agreement and reach net-zero emissions by 2050, and (2) terminate all overseas oil and gas projects as soon as possible. The proponents argue that Equinor's current plans fall short of the emissions reductions necessary to meet Norway's international commitments, referencing the government's expectations for state-owned companies to integrate climate risk, set science-based targets, and report transparently. Citing research by the Australasian Centre for Corporate Responsibility (ACCR), the proponents highlight that Equinor's overseas operations have yielded minimal returns over two decades - a USD 2 billion profit from USD 103 billion invested - while incurring substantial losses, especially in North America. Additionally, international oil and gas projects reportedly generate emissions five times greater than Norway's annual total and have faced strong opposition from local communities due to environmental concerns. The proponents also note that major institutional investors have divested from Equinor over its strategy and lack of alignment with Paris targets. They argue that a continued focus on overseas fossil fuel expansion damages Equinor's financial performance and Norway's climate credibility. Company's response: Equinor recommends voting against the proposal, stating that its updated 2025 Energy Transition Plan already outlines its pathway to net-zero by 2050 and is consistent with the Paris Agreement. The company adopts a three-part approach: reducing operational emissions (Scope 1 and 2), supporting decarbonisation through investment in low-carbon and renewable energy, and stress-testing its portfolio against 1.5°C-aligned scenarios. Equinor emphasizes that the plan - subject to an advisory shareholder vote under Item 8 - addresses the request for detailed emissions and transition planning. Regarding the call to exit international oil and gas activities, Equinor argues that such decisions fall under the board's strategic remit. It notes significant recent restructuring of its global portfolio, including exits from over 20 countries since 2018, and points to improved asset quality, stronger cash flow, and lower emissions intensity. In 2024, international operations accounted for 33% of production and nearly USD 6 billion in operational cash flow. The board maintains that Equinor's strategy balances economic and environmental imperatives and should remain under board oversight. PIRC Recommendation: While Equinor's Energy Transition Plan sets out general goals that reference the Paris Agreement, it lacks a detailed explanation of how current and planned overseas oil and gas operations align with a credible pathway to net-zero. The proponent rightly highlights that Equinor's investment behaviour - particularly in high-risk, low-return international projects - raises concerns about strategic alignment with climate science and responsible capital stewardship. The request for clearer planning and transparency is consistent with good governance and investor expectations for science-based transition strategies. However, the proposal's call to terminate all overseas oil and gas projects is highly directive and operational in nature. While there is growing investor support for halting new fossil fuel expansion, the demand to also phase out existing operations - regardless of their carbon efficiency, contractual obligations, or contribution to transition financing - is a more rigid approach that may limit strategic flexibility and undermine value in the short term. It is recommended to support efforts to curb new fossil development and to realign capital allocation with a 1.5°C trajectory. But in this case, the proposal goes beyond setting expectations or guiding principles and instead prescribes an immediate operational direction. Overall, abstention is recommended.

13. Shareholder Resolution: Separate the Renewable Energy Part of the Company and Invest at Least Nok 5 Billion Annually in the Repair and Renewal of Ukraine's Energy Infrastructure

Proponent: Even Bakke and Guttorm Grundt

Proponent's argument: The proposal calls on Equinor to (1) separate its renewable energy business into a standalone public limited company with a revised ownership structure, and (2) invest at least NOK 5 billion annually in the repair and renewal of Ukraine's energy infrastructure. The proponents argue that Equinor has failed to deliver on its commitments implied by its rebranding from Statoil to Equinor, especially regarding renewable energy development. They cite Equinor's recent decisions to roll back renewable investment targets, phase out its CAPEX commitment to low-carbon solutions, and reduce its net carbon intensity goals - actions they interpret as a retreat from the Paris Agreement. This, they argue, undermines the company's credibility and suggests an entrenched fossil fuel bias within its legacy structure and culture. The first part of the proposal posits that structural separation would allow the renewable segment to scale independently and fulfill its potential without being subordinated to fossil fuel priorities. The second part frames Equinor's high war-time profits from gas sales to Europe as ethically problematic given the destruction of Ukraine's energy infrastructure by Russia. The proponents note that Equinor earned NOK 1,270 billion in revenue in 2022–23 alone, and yet has made no direct capital investment in Ukraine's energy recovery. They argue this poses reputational risks and contradicts Norway's international commitments. The proposed NOK 5 billion annual investment is portrayed not only as an ethical responsibility but also a strategic contribution to European energy security and long-term stability.

Company's response: Equinor opposes the proposal on both points. Regarding the separation of its renewables business, the Board argues that its integrated approach allows for optimal use of in-house expertise from oil and gas operations and leverages Equinor's existing market presence and infrastructure. It states that spinning off renewables would diminish synergies, weaken competitiveness in certain markets, and not improve investment conditions, which are currently challenged by inflation, interest rate pressures, and supply chain constraints - particularly in offshore wind. On Ukraine, Equinor highlights its indirect contribution through Norway's national support via the Nansen Programme, to which Equinor contributes as the country's largest taxpayer. The company also emphasizes its role as a reliable supplier of natural gas to Europe, which it sees as crucial to maintaining regional political stability and support for Ukraine. Additionally, Equinor notes its ongoing dialogues with Ukrainian authorities and limited contributions, including knowledge sharing and donations. The Board asserts that while the company is evaluating how it can further support Ukraine's energy system, mandatory financial commitments such as those proposed are not appropriate and should not be dictated by shareholders.

PIRC Recommendation: The proponent is right to highlight that Equinor has scaled down ambitions related to CAPEX in low-carbon technologies and softened its climate goals - actions that conflict with expectations for a Paris-aligned transition. The suggestion that these developments reflect a deeper cultural or structural misalignment within the company deserves scrutiny. However, the case for spinning off the renewables business is not yet compelling. While it is clear that Equinor must prioritize and elevate its green business strategy, creating a separate listed entity may not be the most effective way to achieve this. The proposal lacks clarity on how structural separation would accelerate decarbonisation or improve capital flows, and there is a genuine risk of weakening internal synergies between renewables, low-carbon solutions, and existing infrastructure. The intention behind the proposal is laudable, empowering renewables to grow unencumbered, but the outcome could be that the fossil side becomes more entrenched and less accountable. It is considered best practice to support climate transformation at the group level, not fragmentation that may leave the most polluting parts of a company less exposed to internal pressure.

On the Ukraine investment, Equinor has generated exceptional wartime profits through gas exports, and a principled, voluntary contribution to rebuilding Ukraine's energy infrastructure aligns with the values of climate justice and energy solidarity. That said, the proposal lacks a concrete operational framework, making the fixed NOK 5 billion figure more symbolic than actionable. Overall, opposition is recommended.

14. Shareholder Resolution: Equinor Shall Renew Their Green Aims, Avoid Further International Investment in Oil and Gas and Donate Billions to Ukraine

Proponent: Gro Nylander

Proponent's argument: The proposal urges Equinor to (1) renew its green transition commitments, including its earlier ambition to become a broad energy company investing in solar and wind, (2) cease further international investments in oil and gas, and (3) donate substantial sums to support the rebuilding of Ukraine's energy infrastructure. The proponent criticizes Equinor for abandoning its earlier climate targets and emphasizes that more than 99% of the company's energy production remains fossil-based. Referencing poor financial returns and public protests surrounding international fossil investments, the proposal characterizes these ventures as environmentally harmful, reputationally damaging, and economically irresponsible. The proposal also emphasizes the ethical dimension of Equinor's profits during the war in Ukraine, calling for a significant financial contribution to help the country rebuild its devastated energy system. It suggests that failure to act could cement perceptions of Equinor and Norway as war profiteers. The shareholder links financial losses, investor dissatisfaction (e.g., the Sarasin divestment), and management performance to the broader critique of strategic drift and environmental negligence.

Company's response: Equinor recommends a vote against the proposal, asserting that its updated 2025 Energy Transition Plan provides a clear, structured pathway to net-zero emissions by 2050. The company highlights progress since 2020, noting that gross capital expenditure in renewables and low-carbon solutions has increased from 4% to 27% of total investments, with current plans to reach 10–12 GW of installed renewable capacity by 2030. The board acknowledges market-driven adjustments to renewable investments but maintains that the company remains aligned with Paris Agreement goals through a comprehensive strategy that includes operational decarbonization, investments in carbon capture, and strategic portfolio management. Regarding international oil and gas investments, Equinor defends its rebalanced and "high-graded" portfolio, which has exited over 20 countries since 2018. The remaining portfolio is focused on fewer, more profitable regions like the UK, USA, and Brazil, with international operations accounting for one-third of production and NOK 60 billion in cash flow in 2024. On Ukraine, Equinor points to its indirect contributions via Norway's Nansen Programme, and to its role as a stable energy supplier to Europe. It notes ongoing engagement with Ukrainian stakeholders, support through knowledge-sharing and material donations, and states that fixed monetary obligations are not appropriate for a listed company's governance.

PIRC Recommendation: The call to renew green transition ambitions is especially well-justified: Equinor's rollback of earlier targets on renewable investment and carbon intensity has weakened its alignment with a Paris-consistent trajectory. These developments have drawn criticism not only from environmental stakeholders but also from institutional investors, and they raise legitimate questions about the company's long-term credibility and climate positioning. Reaffirming Equinor's role as a "broad energy company" with a robust renewables strategy is essential to restoring trust and aligning with investor expectations for a low-carbon transition. The proposal's recommendation to halt new international fossil fuel investments is also directionally appropriate. A pause on new international developments could help Equinor strengthen climate alignment while preserving financial discipline. However, the resolution's call to donate "billions" annually to Ukraine, while ethically compelling, lacks necessary operational and financial detail. There is no clear mechanism proposed for allocating, structuring, or governing such a contribution, which is a significant omission given its scale and the broader shareholder governance implications. Although it would be recommended to strongly support efforts to channel wartime profits toward ethical and just recovery, shareholder resolutions of this nature require more planning and specificity to be considered viable at scale. Overall, abstention is recommended.

15. Shareholder Resolution: Gradually Divest from all International Operations

Proponent: Ivar Sætre
Proponent's argument: The proposal calls on Equinor to begin a phased divestment from all international operations, first in renewables and then in petroleum production. The proponent argues that Equinor was originally established to manage Norway's petroleum resources in the national interest, and that its international expansion since the 1990s has deviated from that purpose. He notes that international operations - both in fossil fuels and renewables - have entailed significant risk and have generated underwhelming returns, particularly in the renewables segment which, according to the proponent, has never produced an annual profit. The proposal also raises concerns about governance: with 70% of Equinor owned by the Norwegian state, oversight is ultimately managed by political bodies that may lack both deep knowledge of the business and personal financial stake in its outcomes. In this context, the proposal suggests that a gradual retreat from international operations is a prudent step to reduce risk and refocus Equinor's mission on domestic value creation.
Company's response: The board recommends voting against the proposal, emphasizing that Equinor's international portfolio is a carefully curated and strategically aligned part of the company's broader value creation model. It notes that since 2018, Equinor has exited over 20 countries and now focuses on core markets such as the UK, USA, and Brazil. This high-grading strategy has improved portfolio resilience, increased cash flow, and reduced emissions intensity. In 2024 alone, international operations accounted for 33% of total production and generated nearly USD 6 billion (NOK 60 billion) in cash flow. Regarding renewables, the board defends its long-term commitment, highlighting a target of 10–12 GW of installed capacity by 2030 and a disciplined, value-driven approach to investment. It also reaffirms that strategic decisions about portfolio composition are the responsibility of the board and management, consistent with corporate governance principles.
PIRC Recommendation: While the proponent raises important historical and governance concerns about the risks of international operations and the nature of state ownership, the proposal itself is too blunt and strategically counterproductive. A blanket directive to divest from all international assets - including renewables - runs counter to the demands of a just and effective energy transition. Global decarbonisation requires active engagement by experienced energy companies in both fossil and renewable value chains, including outside their home markets. Moreover, Equinor's recent restructuring efforts - exiting high-risk regions and concentrating on select core markets - represent a credible risk mitigation strategy. Retreating from international renewables would undercut efforts to scale clean energy technologies in key markets and contradict investor expectations around long-term climate alignment. Overall, opposition is recommended.

6. Approve Financial Statements and Allocation of Income

The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. The Board also proposes to distribute a dividend of USD 0.37 per share, which is covered by earnings. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions.
Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red (+), indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets credibly aligned to a 1.5C or below 2C pathway. As such, and as the chair is not up for election, it is recommended to oppose the financial statements.

8. Say on Climate

Governance The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company. There does not appear to be adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonization on the board of directors, and particularly there is no evidence that any of the directors on the non-executive directors on the board has significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company. There is no evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board or senior management of climate-related issues, most relevantly decarbonization. The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness. Disclosure The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured. However, its Scope 3 targets are not credibly aligned with a 1.5C pathway, which is not considered adequate. The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with the marginal cost of renewables being cheaper, and energy security being increasingly seen in terms of non-fossil sources. The concerns above are reinforced by a seeming inadequate experience or knowledge on decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company, accompanied by lack of relevant training at board level. On balance, it is recommended to oppose.

9. Shareholder Resolution: Discontinue the Wind Power Business and Decommission all Wind Power Plants

Proponent: Roald Skjoldheim Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Equinor immediately cease all involvement in wind power and decommission its existing wind power plants. The proponent supports this request with a variety of concerns centered on economic inefficiency and environmental harm. Among the claims presented are that wind energy has never yielded profit; that turbines rely on toxic hydraulic oil and glycol; that wind farms cause widespread harm to birds, insects, and ecosystems; and that wind turbine blades contribute to microplastic pollution. The proponent also alleges that wind power is unreliable due to its dependence on fluctuating wind conditions, poses safety risks including fire hazards and mechanical failure, and negatively affects the health of nearby humans and animals. In summary, the argument frames wind power as a failed, dangerous, and environmentally damaging energy source, advocating instead for hydropower as a cleaner and more reliable renewable option. Company's response: Equinor recommends voting against the proposal, emphasizing that offshore wind plays a strategic and valuable role in the global transition to low-carbon energy. The company states that its operational offshore wind projects are profitable and that it expects over a 10% return on equity from its renewables and low-carbon portfolio. While acknowledging economic pressures in the offshore wind sector - such as inflation and supply chain issues - Equinor highlights its counter-cyclical investment strategy and its belief in long-term value creation. The company also addresses environmental concerns by noting ongoing efforts to reduce negative impacts, including initiatives to develop fully circular recycling systems for wind turbine blades. Equinor argues that renewable energy development is essential for reducing global emissions, and that challenges, such as environmental trade-offs and community impacts, are being addressed through sustainable design and continuous improvement. It concludes that exiting wind energy would undermine its climate strategy and competitiveness in renewable markets. PIRC Recommendation: While environmental and operational risks do exist in all energy sectors, the proponent's arguments rely heavily on generalizations and unsubstantiated claims, and do not reflect the broader consensus on wind energy's role in decarbonization. Wind power remains a vital and scalable renewable solution, particularly offshore, where Equinor holds established expertise and competitive advantage. The company's approach, including targeted investments, recycling initiatives, and a sustainability-focused environmental policy, reflects a commitment to improving the sector's performance and mitigating its downsides. Abruptly abandoning wind energy would undermine shareholder value, contradict global climate imperatives, and ignore existing profitability in Equinor's wind portfolio.

A. Shareholder Proposal: Setting Discount Rate for Employee Share Issuance

Proponent: FCPE Crédit Agricole S.A. Actions
Proponent's argument: The proponent seeks to establish annual guidelines for determining discount rates applied to capital increases reserved for Crédit Agricole Group employees. The aim is to define a typical profile of employee investors and encourage broader participation by ensuring that share acquisition does not compromise employees' financial stability. The resolution does not seek to constrain the Board's authority but rather to institutionalise a framework that allows annual reviews of appropriate discount levels-suggesting rates of up to 30% for a five-year lock-up and 40% for ten years. It argues that this would align with market conditions, employee expectations, and employer branding, reinforcing the Group's human capital strategy by enhancing loyalty and engagement through accessible employee shareholding.
Company's response: The Board of Directors opposes the resolution. It emphasises that the current process already allows for annual employee share offerings, which are timed to coincide with incentive and profit-sharing disbursements. The Board asserts it retains full authority to set discount rates, with recommendations from the Compensation Committee based on a broad analysis of investment levels, participation rates, and financial conditions. No transaction has been proposed with a discount below 20%. Moreover, the Board argues that each capital increase is considered in its specific context, balancing employee participation with shareholder interests, and guided by the Group's financial performance. It highlights that existing authorisations (31st and 32nd resolutions) provide sufficient flexibility, thus rejecting the proposed change as unnecessary.
PIRC Analysis: The Board already implements employee offerings annually and applies discount rates based on comprehensive assessments. The additional guidelines risk constraining decision-making or leading to expectations of fixed discounts, potentially misaligning with the Group's financial strategy or broader shareholder interests. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

DIRECT LINE INSURANCE GROUP PLC AGM - 14-05-2025

14. Re-elect Richard Ward - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Director member of the Nomination Committee and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of nine years in the Board. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Furthermore, it is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. It is noted that, Mr. Ward has agreed to stay on the Board despite having served for 9 years since the Company is in the midst of a takeover which is targeted to complete mid-2025. Overall, opposition is recommended.

24. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to an Issue of RT1 Instruments

Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 23,250,000, representing approximately 16% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 23 March 2025, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Restricted Tier 1 (RT1) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain its and the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities (or CoCos) is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

6. Re-elect Danuta Gray - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The chair holds another chair position at a listed company, which raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. The COVID pandemic has shown that there are times when multiple unrelated companies will require the Chair's full attention in order to be able to handle times of crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time. Furthermore, It is noted that in the 2024 Annual General Meeting the re-election of Ms. Gray received significant opposition of 11.14% of the votes and the Company did not disclosed information's as to how addressed the issue with its shareholders. It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the TP ICAP Group plc Global Employee Share Purchase Plan (GESPP). Under the plan eligible to participate are the employees (including employed Executive Directors) of participating companies. Three types of award may be offered under the GESPP: i) investment shares ("Investment Shares"), ii) matching share awards and iii) free share awards. The Board has absolute discretion as to what type of award may be offered and can offer or grant awards at any time, subject to any restrictions on dealings or transactions in securities ("Dealing Restrictions"). No awards may be granted after the termination of the GESPP. Awards may be settled using newly issued Shares, Shares transferred from treasury and/or Shares purchased in the market. The Board can choose to grant Matching Share Awards and Free Share Awards as phantom awards, so that they are a conditional right to receive a cash sum in the future linked to the value of a number of notional Shares. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

22. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights

The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed changes to executive remuneration include increasing the CEO's annual bonus opportunity from 250% to 300% of salary and the RSP award from 125% to 200% of salary. For the CFO and Group General Counsel (GGC), the RSP opportunity will rise from 125% to 150%. The minimum shareholding requirement will be raised from 300% to 400% of salary for the CEO, and from 200% to 300% for the CFO and GGC. The Remuneration Committee intends to maintain the current policy of deferring 50% of the annual bonus into shares, but will have the discretion to reduce this to 25% for Executive Directors who have met their minimum shareholding requirement. Overall, disclosure is considered adequate. The CEO's total variable pay could reach 500% of salary, while for other executives it could reach 350%. Half of the annual bonus will be delivered in shares and deferred for three years, though this may be reduced to a 25% deferral once shareholding guidelines are met. The RSP award vests at the end of a three years period in line with market practice, this is not regarded as sufficiently long-term; however, a two-year post-vesting holding period is welcomed. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay components.[newline] Rating: BDB. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Audit Committee and member of the Compensation Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Furthermore, it is considered that both these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1f.. Re-Elect Lisa T. Su - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

4.. Amend Articles to Increase the Authorised Shares of Common Stock

The board proposes to amend the Company's Articles of Incorporation to increase the number of authorised shares of common stock from 2.25 billion to 4.0 billion shares. Currently, 347,771,621 of the authorised shares of common stock remain available for issuance. The board argues that the additional shares provide flexibility for future corporate actions, such as Equity compensation plans, Fundraising via stock issuance, Mergers, acquisitions, and other strategic transactions. The company's reasoning for this increase is insufficient and does not provide a detailed explanation for the need to increase the authorised share capital by 77.78%. Furthermore, there are concerns regarding the potential dilutive effect that this proposal may have. On balance, opposition is recommended.

5.. Amend Articles to Limit the Liability of Officers as Permitted by Delaware Law

The Board seeks authority to amend the articles to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. The Company's Certificate of Incorporation currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonise corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives may cause significantly higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are a more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. Opposition is recommended.

Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. 5.. Amend Articles to Limit the Liability of Officers as Permitted by Delaware Law

The Board seeks authority to amend the articles to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. The Company's Certificate of Incorporation currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonise corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives may cause significantly higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are a more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. Opposition is recommended.

4. Approve Discharge of Supervisory Board for 2024

Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability and the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, opposition is recommended on the discharge. [newline] Additionally, the level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. The EU Directive 2022/2381 on improving gender balance on corporate boards sets an EU-wide mandate, requiring that by June 2026, listed companies must have at least 40% of non-executive director positions occupied by the historically underrepresented gender-or alternatively, 33% of all board seats if member states opt for that alternative. This directive is pushing member states toward a uniform standard that reinforces gender diversity across Europe. As this standard is not met, opposition is recommended.

GAMES WORKSHOP GROUP PLC EGM - 15-05-2025

01. Approve Remuneration Policy

Introduction & Background: At the Company's AGM on 18 September 2024, a notable minority of shareholders opposed the advisory and binding votes on the directors' remuneration report and policy. Following this, and in alignment with the UK Corporate Governance Code, the Board engaged in consultation with shareholders representing approximately 56% of the issued share capital. This process revealed concerns about the lack of share-based compensation and transparency in bonus awards. In response, the Board has proposed a revised remuneration policy for approval at this General Meeting.

Proposal: The resolution seeks shareholder approval to adopt a revised directors' remuneration policy. Key changes include the introduction of a Triennial Share Award, a one-off restricted share award for the CEO, increased bonus opportunities, and formal in- and post-employment share ownership requirements. The new policy also clarifies and enhances disclosure around performance assessments for bonus payments.

Rationale: The proposed policy updates aim to align executive remuneration with shareholder interests and best practices among FTSE-listed companies. The Board believes these measures will enhance transparency, provide competitive compensation to attract and retain executive talent, and reflect the long-term strategic priorities of the business. Notably, the inclusion of share-based awards addresses previous shareholder concerns and incentivizes long-term performance.

PIRC Recommendation: It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

02. Approve of the 2025 Share Awards Plan

Introduction & Background: The Plan forms a key component of the newly proposed remuneration framework. Designed by the Remuneration Committee following consultations with shareholders, it introduces structured share-based incentives to complement the company's strategic cycles and long-term growth ambitions.

Proposal: This resolution seeks approval for the Games Workshop Group PLC 2025 Share Awards Plan. The Plan encompasses two main elements: (1) a Restricted Share Award for the CEO contingent upon continued employment, and (2) Triennial Share Awards tied to financial performance metrics. The Plan also allows the Board to implement analogous plans for employees outside the UK, subject to local regulations.

Rationale: The introduction of the Share Awards Plan is intended to bolster the Company's ability to offer competitive and motivating equity-based remuneration. By directly linking executive rewards to financial performance and service continuity, the Plan supports strategic alignment with shareholder interests. It also serves to correct the prior lack of equity incentives identified by some shareholders, thereby fostering sustained executive engagement and corporate stability.

PIRC Recommendation: The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Opposition is recommended.

Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. However, the deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is not considered adequate. Half of the bonus should be deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.[newline]Rating: BDC. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

16. Approve the Adoption of the Ceres Power Holdings plc Long Term Incentive Plan

The Company is seeking shareholder approval for the rules of the 2025 LTIP to replace the rules of the Ceres Power Holdings plc Long Term Incentive Plan 2016 (2016 LTIP), which will expire in 2026. Eligible to participate in the plan are all employees (including employed executive directors) of the Company and its subsidiaries. Awards made to executive directors of the Company ("Executive Directors") will comply with the shareholder-approved directors' remuneration policy in effect at that time. Awards may be granted in the form of: i) a conditional award, being a conditional right to acquire fully paid ordinary shares in the capital of the Company ("Shares"), ii) an option, being a right in the form of an option to acquire Shares, iii) a phantom award, being a conditional right to receive a cash sum linked to the value of a number of notional Shares, iv) a deferred award, being a conditional right to acquire Shares and which relates to the deferral of a cash bonus or other entitlement or payment; or v) a restricted share award, being an award of forfeitable Shares. Awards may be settled using (or in the case of restricted share awards, awarded over) newly issued Shares, Shares transferred from treasury and/or Shares purchased in the market. Awards may not be transferred or otherwise disposed of except on the participant's death. This includes Shares subject to a restricted share award, except in limited circumstances such as a sale to cover taxation. No payment is required for the grant of an award. Awards may be granted subject to performance conditions, or other conditions, that must normally be satisfied in order for awards to vest. Awards granted to Executive Directors will, if required by the Remuneration Policy, be subject to the satisfaction of one or more performance conditions. Awards will normally vest on the later of the date the Board decides the performance conditions and other conditions have been satisfied and the vesting date specified by the Board at grant. Awards may vest in tranches, in which case each tranche may have a different vesting date. Awards may, and in the case of Executive Directors will (as required by the Remuneration Policy), be subject to a holding period after vesting or exercise, during which Shares cannot normally be transferred, assigned or otherwise disposed of except in certain limited circumstances, such as a sale to cover taxation. If an award is settled in cash, the Board will decide how the holding period will operate. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Eurocell plc operates two main incentive schemes for Executive Directors: an Annual Bonus Plan and a Performance Share Plan (PSP). Under the Annual Bonus Plan, the Chief Executive Officer can earn up to 150% of salary, and the Chief Financial Officer up to 100%. Half of any bonus earned is deferred into shares for three years, unless the executive has already met the company's shareholding guideline of 200% of salary. Both malus and clawback provisions apply to the bonus, and payouts are subject to performance conditions, although achieving just one is sufficient to trigger a payment. [newline] The PSP provides long-term incentives with significant award potential. In 2025, the CEO and CFO are set to receive one-off awards of 800% and 600% of salary respectively, with a four-year performance period. An additional one-year holding period applies to half of any vested shares. The scheme includes malus and clawback mechanisms, and vested awards may be increased to reflect dividend equivalents. [newline] Executive Directors are employed under rolling contracts with a maximum notice period of 12 months. Termination payments exclude bonuses and benefits and there are no provisions for enhanced terms on change of control. While there is no explicit cap on termination payments, the company has discretion to determine outcomes based on the circumstances of departure. Variable elements are excluded from standard severance terms. [newline] Rating: BDC, therefore opposition is recommended.

The CEO's total variable pay has a maximum potential of 300%, which exceeds the recommended limit of 200% and is therefore considered excessive. Annual performance metrics include Underlying FRE, PRE, Cash Conversion, Employee Engagement, Diversity & ESG, and Business Strategy. For the Annual Bonus, any portion exceeding 25% of base salary will be subject to 50% deferral into shares, which will vest after three years. Bonus performance will be assessed using a blend of financial (70%) and non-financial (30%) measures. 2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total variable pay could reach 350% of salary for the CEO and 300% for the CFO, which is considered excessive as it exceeds the recommended limit of 200%. Regarding the Annual Bonus, for executive directors with bonus opportunities of 100% of salary or higher, one third of any bonus earned will be deferred in shares over one, two, and three years; however, this is deemed insufficient, with a preference for 50% of the bonus to be paid in cash and 50% deferred into shares for a minimum of three years. The LTIP award for FY2025 is based on the achievement of EPS and relative TSR targets, but the absence of non-financial parameters to assess executives' long-term performance is considered contrary to best practice, as such factors are generally outside an individual director's control and help align the remuneration policy with the broader operational performance of the business and the contribution of each senior executive. Although the performance period is three years, which is not considered sufficiently long-term, a two-year holding period does apply, and malus and clawback provisions are in place.[newline] Rating: BDC. 1. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Vote: Abstain

Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 0.5

10. Approve Remuneration Policy of the CEO

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy of the CEO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 85.0, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose: 14.9

12. Approve the Remuneration Report of Corporate Officers

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report of Corporate Officers. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 89.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 10.9

14. Approve the Remuneration Report of Mr Pierre Boulud, Chief Executive Officer

It is proposed to approve the implementation of Mr Pierre Boulud, Chief Executive Officer. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 86.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 13.5

15. Authorise Share Repurchase: MyShare 2025 employee share purchase plan

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 100.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 0.0

19. Issue Shares for Cash

Authority is sought to issue shares without pre-emptive rights to an amount of more than 10% of the share capital, which is deemed excessive. Opposition is recommended.

2. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Results: For: 99.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 0.4

20. Increase capital without preferential rights by other public offerings or in exchange for contributions

Authority is sought to issue shares without pre-emptive rights. Regardless of the corresponding dilution, it can be used in time of public offer, which is considered to be an anti-takeover device. Opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 85.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 14.8

21. Approve Issue of Shares Deviating from Price Fixing Conditions

The Board requests authority to issue capital related securities without adhering to the general pricing conditions. Under this authority, the company would be authorised to issues shares at a discount of 10% up to a total of 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 12 months at a time, until a total duration of the authority of 26 months. Given concerns over the level of discount and the amount of the authority, opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 85.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose: 14.7

22. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand. [newline] A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 84.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose: 15.4

25. Authorisation to issue shares following the issuance of securities by subsidiaries or the parent company

The board seeks authority to issue convertible bonds and to exclude subscription rights for a nominal amount corresponding to more than 10% of the share capital and for 26 months. As the authority would also include bonds convertible and without pre-emptive rights, the amount under this authority exceeds guidelines for issues of shares without pre-emptive rights.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 84.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose: 15.4

7. Elect Fanny Letier - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the HR, Compensation and CSR Committee. [newline] Furthermore, based on PIRC's overall assessment of transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Black, indicating that it falls short on one of PIRC's most basic expectations. Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] Furthermore, based on PIRC's overall assessment of transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Black, indicating that it falls short on one of PIRC's most basic expectations. PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.04% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.30% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. The company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5C scenario. 1.7. Re-Elect Edna K. Morris - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

4.. Amend the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation to provide for the Exculpation of Officers

The Company proposes amending its Restated Certificate of Incorporation to allow for the exculpation of corporate officers from certain personal liabilities, as now permitted under a 2022 amendment to the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonise corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are a more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

COMMERZBANK AGM - 15-05-2025

10. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to renew and extend the existing authorisation to acquire and use its own shares, originally approved on April 30, 2024, and valid until April 29, 2029. The new authorization would be valid until May 14, 2030, and allow the bank to repurchase up to 10% of its share capital, with flexibility in acquisition methods, including stock exchange, public purchase offers, or derivatives. [newline] The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. Shareholders would not have the right to directly enter into these derivative contracts. The use of shares acquired through these methods would follow the same rules as outlined in Agenda Item 10. 10. Resolution on the authorisation to acquire and use treasury shares pursuant to section 71 para.1 no.8 of the German Stock Corporation Act with the possible exclusion of subscription rights and any right to sell shares

Resolution 10 is an ordinary resolution authorizing Heidelberg Materials AG to acquire and use treasury shares, replacing the partially utilized 2023 authorization. The company may repurchase up to 10 percent of its share capital until 14 May 2030, either on the stock exchange, via public purchase offers, or through shareholder sell-rights. Acquired shares may be used for various legal purposes, including fulfilling obligations under employee share programs or reselling, with the possibility to exclude subscription rights in specific cases. This authorisation ensures flexibility in capital management while respecting regulatory limits. The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18 month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given that the duration exceeds the typical 18 month limit, opposition is recommended.

11. Resolution on the authorisation to use derivatives in the course of acquiring treasury shares with the possible exclusion of subscription rights and any right to sell shares

Heidelberg Materials AG is seeking shareholder approval to use derivatives such as put and call options or forward purchase contracts as part of its treasury share buyback program. The volume of shares acquired via derivatives is limited to 5 percent of the company's share capital, and all contracts must expire by 14 May 2030, with individual contracts capped at 18 months. This resolution is part of a broader buyback authority allowing the company to repurchase up to 10 percent of its share capital. It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report of corporate officers. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 11. Approve the Remuneration Report of Mr Augustin de Romanet, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report of Mr Augustin de Romanet, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital and cannot exceed 15 months. We consider this to be an excessive premium that may not represent a prudent use of shareholder capital. Paying significantly above market value for shares can result in an inefficient allocation of resources and may not deliver value to long-term shareholders. Authority to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 1,250,000,000, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments. Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They are additional tier 1 ('AT1') instruments which convert into ordinary shares of the Company should the Company's common equity tier 1 ratio fall below a contractually defined trigger point. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation. [newline] The use of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instrument is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. They are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in the banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. There are important concerns about the destabilizing effect of such instruments on both the instrument price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. As there is no formal Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended. Furthermore, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

3.. Approve New Omnibus Plan

The Plan is presented as an omnibus plan, which means that bundled within the same official plan there are various incentive plan elements aimed at rewarding different groups of employees, officers and executives. However, it is noted that the Compensation Committee retains the power to select employees to receive awards and determine the terms and conditions of awards (and also note that 'management employees' appear most likely to be the principal beneficiaries of the Plan). On this basis, opposition is recommended.

4.. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Opposition is recommended.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Risk of Stakeholder Capitalism

Proponent: Grace Graber (via Bowyer Research) Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that BlackRock issue a public report evaluating how its Board oversees legal and reputational risks associated with a perceived shift away from traditional fiduciary responsibility toward stakeholder capitalism. This shift, according to the proponent, is signaled by BlackRock's endorsement of the Business Roundtable's Statement on the Purpose of a Corporation and its broad embrace of ESG and DEI initiatives. The supporting statement argues that these actions have resulted in "significant legal and reputational risks" and created controversy, especially in politically conservative circles. The proponent cites divestments and business restrictions by states such as Texas, West Virginia, and Oklahoma as evidence of material impact, noting that "nine states have divested billions from asset managers including BlackRock." The resolution questions whether stakeholder capitalism aligns with fiduciary duty and urges the Board to examine what policies may be contributing to reputational damage and client losses. Company's response: BlackRock recommends shareholders vote against the proposal. The company reaffirms its commitment to fiduciary duty, stating that it focuses on "helping our clients achieve their investment objectives." It asserts that the proposal mischaracterizes BlackRock's stance and notes that it has been criticized from both political extremes, which suggests a balanced approach. The company highlights its financial performance in 2024, including "record client net inflows of $641 billion" and double-digit growth in key metrics, as evidence of shareholder value creation. BlackRock also states that its governance framework ensures adequate Board oversight, with regular policy updates and compliance review. The Board concludes that the requested report would "not yield meaningful additional information" and therefore does not warrant shareholder support. PIRC Recommendation: While the proponent highlights concerns about legal and reputational risks, the request centers on a political framing of stakeholder capitalism rather than a governance deficiency. BlackRock already provides ample disclosure around its governance practices, investment principles, and fiduciary commitments. The company has also faced criticism from both progressive and conservative stakeholders, indicating its policies do not reflect partisan activism but rather a broad-based fiduciary strategy. Furthermore, BlackRock's strong financial and operational results, including substantial net inflows and competitive returns, suggest that its current approach is not adversely affecting long-term shareholder value. The report requested is unlikely to offer new insights or materially enhance risk oversight. As such, the proposal appears more ideologically motivated than aimed at improving governance or transparency.

2.. Ratify, on an advisory basis, the appointment of (i) Deloitte & Touche LLP to audit our financial statements and (ii) Deloitte Ireland LLP to audit our Irish Statutory Accounts, and authorize, in a binding vote, the Board, acting through the Audit Committee, to fix the independent auditors' remuneration.

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.43% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.67% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. 1c.. Elect H. Edward Hanway - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Business Responsibility Committee, Directors and Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Similarly, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Directors and Governance Committee and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended. [newline] Furthermore, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Faith-Based Employee Resource Groups

Proponent: Bowyer Research, Inc. on behalf of the Oklahoma Tobacco Settlement Endowment Trust (TSET).

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request the Board of Directors of Yum! Brands, Inc. conduct an evaluation and issue a report within the next year, at reasonable cost and excluding proprietary information and disclosure of anything that would constitute an admission of pending litigation, evaluating the risks related to religious discrimination against employees. The proponent argues that recognizing religious identity within Yum's diversity framework would help attract top talent, foster inclusivity, and build trust. Citing the 2024 Viewpoint Diversity Score Business Index, the proposal notes that over 64% of peer companies lack faith-based ERGs, and only 5% host faith-specific groups. Yum! Brands is identified among those without such representation, despite hosting ERGs focused on race, gender identity, and military status. The proposal further emphasizes employee concerns from the 2023 Freedom at Work survey: "60% of employees were concerned that their company would punish them for expressing their religious or political views... even on their private social media accounts." Additionally, the proponent invokes recent Supreme Court rulings (Groff v. DeJoy; Muldrow v. City of St. Louis) to underscore that religious protections now cover all employment privileges, implying that not permitting faith-based ERGs may be legally questionable. The requested outcome is a report within one year assessing the risks of religious discrimination and evaluating how existing structures may fall short in addressing such risks.

Company's response: Yum's Board recommends a vote against the proposal, stating that the company already provides robust policies and safeguards against religious discrimination and that a report is unnecessary. "The Company is deeply committed to creating a culture of inclusion and belonging that allows employees to express their religious faith and beliefs freely, without fear of bias, harassment or unequal treatment." Yum! details its current measures: An Anti-Discrimination and Harassment Policy applicable across the employment lifecycle A confidential Speak Up helpline for anonymous reports A global compliance program with mandatory training on protected characteristics and workplace behavior Religious accommodations, including flexible time off and floating holidays The company emphasizes its employee experience surveys, which reportedly show no significant demand for faith-based ERGs: "Religion has not been identified as a factor that impacts the quality of employee experience at the Company." The company frames its existing Communities of Belonging (COBs) - the equivalent of ERGs - as demand-driven. It asserts that the absence of a faith-based COB reflects employee priorities rather than a gap in inclusivity or risk exposure. Finally, Yum argues that its existing framework already meets or exceeds legal standards, including the recent case law referenced by the proponent.

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

9. Amend Articles: Virtual Only Meetings until 2027

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

6. Refresh 15% Placement Capacity Under ASX Listing Rules

[bold] Introduction & Background: [close] On 11 December 2024, Ampol Limited completed the issuance of AUD 600 million worth of unsecured, subordinated, and convertible notes through a placement to wholesale and institutional investors. This initiative was carried out under the Company's 15% placement capacity permitted by ASX Listing Rule 7.1 and did not initially require shareholder approval. The capital raising forms part of Ampol's broader capital management strategy to enhance its financial flexibility, refinance existing debt maturities, and support its credit profile. [newline][bold] Proposal: [close] The Board now proposes to ratify the previous issue of these Notes, effectively refreshing the Company's 15% placement capacity under ASX Listing Rules. By approving this resolution, the Notes issuance would be treated as if it had prior shareholder consent, thereby restoring the Company's full placement capacity. This will allow Ampol to issue additional securities within the 12-month period without breaching ASX Listing Rule 7.1 limits. [newline][bold] Rationale: [close] The rationale for this resolution is to enhance Ampol's financial agility by restoring the full 15% placement headroom, which would otherwise remain partially consumed by the prior Notes issuance. This refreshed capacity would facilitate more strategic and timely responses to future capital requirements without the delay or constraints of seeking additional shareholder approvals. This flexibility is deemed essential for maintaining an optimal capital structure, supporting operational needs, and taking advantage of market opportunities aligned with Ampol's Capital Allocation Framework. [newline][bold] Recommendation: [close] There are concerns regarding governance and shareholder rights. The issuance amounting to AUD 600 million was executed without prior shareholder approval, bypassing an opportunity for shareholder scrutiny on a significant capital raising. Additionally, the potential dilution arising from the conversion of the Notes is not subject to a defined cap and depends on future market pricing, raising concerns over transparency and the potential erosion of existing shareholder value. Due to these reasons, opposition is recommended.

[bold]Disclosure:[close]All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is not in line with the workforce, since for the year under review the CEO salary increase by 18.6% and the average workforce increase was 6.3%. The CEO salary is in the median of the competitor group. [newline][bold]Balance:[close]Total variable pay for the year under review is not excessive at 189% of salary (Annual Bonus: 150%, LTIP: 37%, & other: 2%). 12. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total variable pay could reach up to 250% of salary, and if executives achieve overperformance under the RSP (Restricted Share Plan) award, it could rise to 283% of salary, which is considered excessive as it exceeds the proposed 200% threshold. Regarding the Annual Bonus, if the maximum bonus opportunity exceeds 100% of salary, up to one-third of the total bonus earned (rather than only the portion above 100%) will be deferred into Company shares for two years; however, this is not considered adequate, and it would be preferable for 50% of the bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to be deferred into shares for at least three years. The RSP (Restricted Share Plan) award does not incorporate any non-financial performance measures, resulting in a remuneration policy that focuses solely on financial KPIs, many of which are outside an individual executive's control, rather than linking pay to the operational performance of the business or individual contributions. Although the performance period for the RSB is three years, which is not regarded as sufficiently long-term, the subsequent two-year holding period is welcomed. It is also noted positively that malus and clawback provisions apply to all forms of variable pay.[newline] Rating: BDB. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

17. Approve the Amendments to the Harworth 2019 Restricted Share Plan (the RSP)

The RSP is a discretionary share plan and is the principal long term incentive arrangement for Executive Directors and other members of the Harworth team. The RSP was adopted with effect from 21 May 2019 following the approval of Shareholders at the 2019 annual general meeting and subsequently amended following the approval of Shareholders at the 2022 annual general meeting. Two amendments are proposed to the RSP to reflect the new Directors' Remuneration Policy for which approval is sought as referred to in relation to Resolution 12: i) The RSP includes an individual limit on participation, which provides that no person may be granted an award (other than an award granted in connection with that person's recruitment) in respect of a financial year of the Company over shares with a market value (as determined by the Remuneration Committee) in excess of 112.5% of their base salary. To align the RSP with the new Directors' Remuneration Policy, it is proposed that this limit be increased to 133% of base salary. This amendment will enable the grant of a "core" award up to the level of 100% of salary and an "outperformance" element up to 0.33x the core award, as referred to in the statement from the Chair of the Remuneration Committee in the Directors' Remuneration Report for the year ended 31 December 2024, which can be found on pages 142 to 149 of the Annual Report and ii) Under the RSP, a participant may receive cash or additional shares based on the value of dividends paid on vested award shares over such period as the Remuneration Committee determines (beginning no earlier than the vesting date and ending no later than the date on which the award is released). In line with typical practice, the new Directors' Remuneration Policy permits the award of these dividend equivalents in respect of dividends over the vesting period, and not just over the period from vesting to release. To align the RSP with the new Directors' Remuneration Policy and in line with typical practice, it is proposed that the rules be amended to permit the award of dividend equivalents over such period as the Remuneration Committee determines (ending no later than the date on which the award is released). In line with its current practice, the Remuneration Committee's intention is that any dividend equivalents would be settled in shares, with cash settlement applied only where the particular circumstances make that appropriate.[newline] he amendments proposed do not promote better alignment with shareholder. Moreover, PIRC does not consider that LTIPs are an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager, nor a company secretary in the employ of the fund manager), we would like to see a public statement: - addressing whether any part of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the total costs as in the Key Investor information Document - 'KID'), - setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and - setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets, - setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

1a.. Elect Timothy P. Cawley - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. [newline] As the Chair of the Safety, Environment, Operations and Sustainability Committee is up for re-election, the Chair and CEO is considered accountable for the company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed changes include: i) increasing the maximum opportunity for the annual bonus to 150% of salary for executives; ii) introducing a new long-term incentive plan called the Shareholder Value Alignment Plan (SVAP); and iii) stipulating that any Executive Director participating in the SVAP will be excluded from participating in any other long-term incentive plan during the policy period. While total potential variable pay could reach 250% of salary-exceeding the recommended limit of 200% and raising concerns of excessiveness-it is acknowledged that participation in the SVAP precludes eligibility for other incentive awards. Additionally, dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the grant date, which creates a misalignment between executives and shareholders, as shareholders must purchase shares to receive dividends, whereas scheme participants are not required to do so. The Long-Term Incentive Plan (LTIP) lacks non-financial performance measures, resulting in a remuneration policy that does not adequately emphasize the operational performance of the business or the individual contributions of executives. Instead, the focus remains on financial key performance indicators, many of which lie outside the direct influence of individual directors. 4. Approve the Shareholder Value Alignment Plan (SVAP)

It is proposed that shareholders approve the Shareholder Value Alignment Plan (SVAP), which will be open to all employees, including Executive Directors, of the Company and its subsidiaries. No awards under the SVAP may be granted after the tenth anniversary of its shareholder approval, nor may any awards be structured to vest beyond that date. The first grants are planned for May 2025, contingent upon the participant's satisfactory conduct in the preceding year and the Company maintaining sound capital and liquidity. These prerequisites must be met for each subsequent award, though the People and Remuneration Committee may revise the criteria to ensure legal and regulatory compliance. Each SVAP award will take the form of a nil-cost option (an SVAP Option), allowing the participant to acquire shares in the Company upon vesting. Vesting is subject to performance criteria including growth from a defined market value baseline (subject to a minimum growth hurdle), a time-based vesting condition, additional performance underpins, and any other terms set at the time of grant by the Committee. Awards may cover up to 5% of the Value Pool (the "Management Pool"), with individual grants capped at 2.5%. The total number of shares issued or transferred under the SVAP-together with those under any other Company or predecessor share plan, including all-employee plans-will not exceed 10% of the Company's issued share capital over any ten-year period. SVAP Options become exercisable only once both the growth performance and time-based conditions are fulfilled, and participants must comply with holding requirements upon exercise. While increasing employee shareholding is generally viewed as a positive governance measure that enhances alignment between employees and shareholders, it is noted that executives are also beneficiaries; therefore, on balance, opposition to the proposal is recommended.

The performance period for the LTIP is three-years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional two year holding period applies post vesting, which is welcomed. Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 4.. Shareholder Resolution: Advisory Vote on Report Related to Oversight of Advertising Risks

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by Bowyer Research on behalf of the Bahnsen Family Trust

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that McDonald's produce a report evaluating its oversight of advertising related risks, particularly those involving the alleged suppression or exclusion of viewpoints based on political or religious affiliations. The resolution claims that McDonald's, through participation in the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM), contributed to industry wide censorship by aligning with agencies and associations that promoted content moderation frameworks based on subjective criteria like "disinformation," "insensitive," or "debated sensitive social issues." Citing the high concentration of ad-buying power within GARM and its subsequent dissolution following public scrutiny and a lawsuit from X (formerly Twitter), the proposal argues that such alliances present legal and reputational risks. The proponents point to practices that may amount to viewpoint discrimination and express concern about McDonald's association with organisations like the Global Disinformation Index and NewsGuard. They contend that greater transparency is necessary to assure shareholders and the public that advertising decisions align with principles of free speech and religious liberty. By evaluating these risks and practices, McDonald's can protect brand integrity and legal standing while rebuilding public trust.

Company's Response: McDonald's Board recommends a vote against the proposal, asserting that the requested report is unnecessary due to the company's existing risk management and advertising governance structures. The Board emphasises that McDonald's advertising strategy is centered around customer experience, value, cultural relevance, and brand trust, and is guided by its "Feel-Good Marketing" approach. Oversight of advertising is embedded in the company's leadership structure through its Chief Marketing Officer and Chief Impact Officer, with cross functional executive involvement. The company highlights that its global marketing decisions, including those made by franchisees, are made independently and grounded in brand safety, not political alignment. The Board also points to the enterprise risk management (ERM) framework which monitors reputational and strategic risks, including those associated with marketing, and involves escalation to the CEO and the Board when warranted. McDonald's states that it already provides appropriate oversight and transparency, and the requested evaluation would be duplicative and not materially beneficial to shareholders. The Board concludes that its current governance systems are sufficient to address the concerns raised and therefore recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The proposal requests additional disclosures regarding how McDonald's oversees risks related to alleged viewpoint discrimination in its advertising decisions. While transparency around advertising and brand safety policies can contribute to accountability and reputational risk management, this particular resolution raises concerns. It originates from a right-wing advocacy group and reflects broader campaigns aimed at curbing corporate alignment with environmental, social, or governance (ESG) standards under the banner of defending free speech and religious freedom. The language and rationale of the proposal - including references to political and religious viewpoint protection indicate that it is intended to discourage companies from participating in industry-wide brand safety frameworks or ESG aligned advertising partnerships. These types of proposals have increasingly been used as spoiler or reactionary resolutions, aiming to limit companies' engagement with responsible business practices, particularly on social or ethical issues. McDonald's has already articulated a risk oversight structure that includes advertising practices, and its existing governance mechanisms appear sufficient to address relevant brand and reputational risks. Given the ideological nature of the resolution and its limited potential to enhance long-term shareholder value, opposition is recommended.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Advisory Vote to Revisit DEI in Executive Compensation

Proponent Shareholder: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center (NLPC) requests that McDonald's Board revisit its executive compensation policies and consider eliminating DEI-based performance metrics from incentive plans. The proposal cites growing legal and reputational risks following the 2023 U.S. Supreme Court decision on affirmative action, which has triggered a broader reassessment of DEI initiatives across institutions and corporations. NLPC argues that linking executive pay to diversity quotas such as McDonald's goals for women and underrepresented groups in leadership, and for supplier diversity may expose the company to litigation under anti-discrimination statutes, particularly Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. The proposal claims that DEI-linked incentives could constitute discriminatory practices, and points to recent high-profile lawsuits as evidence of mounting liability and scrutiny. It further asserts that McDonald's current structure, which allocates 15% of short-term incentive plan payouts to human capital metrics, lacks sufficient GAAP basis and may open the door to regulatory or compliance challenges. The resolution calls for greater caution and urges a compensation review that removes DEI as a performance metric to reduce legal exposure and restore neutrality in executive pay structures.

Company's Response: The Board recommends a vote against the proposal, stating that it is unnecessary and overly prescriptive. The Compensation Committee already conducts a comprehensive annual review of executive compensation, with input from shareholders and independent consultants, to ensure alignment with the company's strategy and long-term shareholder value creation. The Committee's approach includes evaluation of both financial and non-financial metrics, including those that reflect progress on values such as inclusion and community impact. McDonald's emphasises that these metrics are consistent with its business priorities and strategic goals, and are adjusted yearly to reflect current priorities. For example, in 2024 and 2025, a Strategic Scorecard was introduced to capture qualitative efforts around culture, franchising, and inclusion. The company argues that shareholders have generally supported its Say-on-Pay proposals, and the Committee maintains full independence and expertise to set appropriate metrics. The Board also expresses concern that adopting the proposal would undermine the Committee's business judgment and flexibility to adapt pay structures. As such, the Board concludes the resolution would not benefit shareholders and recommends voting against it.

PIRC analysis: Increased scrutiny of how ESG factors are embedded into executive pay is appropriate and, in principle, greater transparency and alignment of performance incentives with long-term sustainability goals can benefit shareholders. However, this resolution appears to be ideologically driven and rooted in a flawed interpretation of fiduciary and legal risk. The proponent seeks to eliminate DEI-related metrics from compensation structures, presenting them as inherently discriminatory and legally dubious, while offering no evidence that the company's current practices violate existing law or materially harm shareholder value. The proposal mischaracterises DEI goals as "quotas" and frames human capital management as a legal liability, overlooking the substantial body of evidence that suggests companies with strong diversity strategies perform better over time and face lower reputational and governance risks. Moreover, McDonald's has clearly disclosed that its human capital metrics are subject to annual review by an independent Compensation Committee and represent a small portion of short-term incentives. The resolution would inappropriately restrict board discretion and undermine evolving best practice in human capital oversight. On balance, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

6.. Amend Certificate of Incorporation to Reflect New Delaware Law Provisions Regarding Officer Exculpation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. [newline] Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes for its long-term, climate neutrality target. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

TERNA SPA AGM - 21-05-2025

0030. Long-Term Incentive Plan based on 2025-2029 Performance Shares

The Performance Share Plan 2025–2029 is targeted primarily at the management personnel within the Terna Group. This includes the General Manager (who also holds the position of Chief Executive Officer), key management personnel, and a selected group of senior and middle managers who are pivotal in achieving the Group's strategic objectives. The plan foresees participation by up to a maximum of 180 beneficiaries. The plan does not require any investment from the beneficiaries. The shares are granted free of charge upon the achievement of specific performance objectives, conditional on continued employment and other plan conditions. [newline]The plan provides for the allocation of Performance Shares. These are ordinary shares of Terna S.p.A. awarded free of charge. There is no mention of options or phantom shares; the plan is strictly based on the grant of real equity instruments (i.e., actual shares). Additionally, beneficiaries may receive "dividend equivalents," representing the value of dividends that would have been received on the granted shares during the vesting period, awarded in the form of additional shares. [newline]The award of Performance Shares under the Plan is subject to the achievement of performance conditions that are, although not all, quantified, measured over a three-year vesting period (2025–2027). The performance conditions are grouped into three categories: [newline]Operating Performance (45% weighting), including Cumulative EBITDA (15% weighting): Targets and scoring are numeric, ranging from 0% (if EBITDA is less than Plan – €135M) up to 150% (if EBITDA exceeds Plan by +€135M); Funds from Operations (FFO) to Average Net Debt (30% weighting): Targets and scoring are numeric, with thresholds at 10%, 11%, and ≥11.5%. [newline]Market Performance (15% weighting), including Relative Total Shareholder Return (TSR): Terna's TSR is measured against a benchmark group. Performance scores are clearly defined for specific rankings (e.g., 0% for 5th–7th place, 100% for 3rd place, and 150% for 1st–2nd place, with conditions for negative TSR). [newline]Sustainability Performance (40% weighting): including Overgeneration (30% weighting): Numeric targets are set regarding the reduction in modulated production from non-programmable renewable sources; Connections (10% weighting): Efficiency of connection times to the national grid is measured against predefined contractual standards. [newline]A minimum overall performance threshold of 80% is required for any shares to be awarded, with a maximum potential of 150% of the targeted shares. [newline]The Plan provides for: A three-year vesting period (2025–2027), during which performance objectives must be achieved. Following vesting, shares will be awarded in 2028. 30% of the awarded shares, including any shares awarded as dividend equivalents, will be subject to a two-year lock-up period ending in 2029. During this lock-up period, the shares cannot be transferred or sold. Additionally, beneficiaries must maintain a continuous employment relationship up to the award date to be eligible for the shares. Specific clawback provisions apply if performance information is later found to be incorrect or in cases of fraud or gross misconduct. The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. [newline]PIRC's analysis [newline]Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice, although not fully since some are linked to budget who is not clearly quantified (despite being mentioned in the business plan 2024-2028, is not broken down by year), making an actual informed assessment impossible at this time. Additionally, the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Opposition is recommended.

Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

18. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback could potentially increase the ownership stake of a controlling shareholder, whether current or potential. This could lead to an imbalance in shareholder power and undermine the interests of minority shareholders. It is crucial to avoid consolidating control in the hands of one entity, as this could hinder corporate governance and decision-making. To ensure fairness and equitable treatment of all shareholders, it won't be supported any buyback that risks increasing the ownership of a controlling party.

19. Approve Rule 9 Waiver

Resolution 19 seeks approval from independent shareholders to waive the requirement for the Concert Party to make a mandatory offer under Rule 9 of the Takeover Code, should their shareholding increase as a result of the Company repurchasing its own shares. While the waiver would allow flexibility in executing a buy-back programme, the proposal lacks a binding commitment from the Concert Party not to increase their holding, relying instead on a non-binding statement of current intent. This creates the risk of an incremental rise in control without shareholder scrutiny or an offer to remaining investors. It would be preferable for any buy-back activity to include or prioritise purchases from the Concert Party itself, to avoid further consolidation of their influence and ensure a more equitable treatment of all shareholders. In the absence of such safeguards, the resolution raises concerns around governance and should not be supported.

4. Approve Remuneration Policy

Total variable pay could reach 350% of the salary and is deemed excessive since is higher than 200%. It is noted the committee may defer and pay a proportion (up to 40% of the earned annual bonus) in shares which vest after two year of grant and must be held for two years after vesting. Though the deferral component is welcomed, it should be noted that it is considered that 50% of the annual bonus should be deferred for over two years. Malus and clawback provisions apply. LTIP award has a performance period of three years which is not sufficiently, long-term, however a two year holding period applies which is welcomed. Rating: BCC, therefore abstention is recommended.

11. Re-appoint BDO LLP as the Company's auditor

BDO LLP proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.53% of audit fees during the year under review and 14.23% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed changes include allowing the Remuneration Committee to vary the proportion of bonuses paid in cash and shares, replacing the current fixed 50:50 split, and introducing a post-employment shareholding requirement whereby Executive Directors must retain the lower of 100% of their actual holding at cessation and 150% of salary for two years after leaving the company. However, total variable pay could reach 250% of salary for the Executive Chair and CEO, which is deemed excessive given it surpasses the 200% threshold. Regarding the annual bonus, the flexibility in payout structure is considered inadequate, with a preferred structure being 50% in cash and 50% deferred into shares for at least three years. In terms of the Long-Term Incentive Plan (LTIP), it is noted that no non-financial metrics are used, which is viewed as misaligned with best practice since such metrics help link pay to overall business performance and individual executive contributions-especially important as financial metrics are often outside a director's control. Although the performance period is set at three years, which is not seen as sufficiently long-term, the subsequent two-year holding period is a positive feature. Additionally, there is no indication that dividends are excluded from vesting awards during the grant-to-vesting period, potentially misaligning executive and shareholder interests, as shareholders must purchase shares to receive dividends, unlike plan participants. Malus and clawback provisions do apply to all forms of variable pay.[newline] Rating: BDB. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

6. Elect Graeme Dacomb - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. Non-Executive Director, chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

Total potential awards under all incentive schemes are considered excessive with a maximum opportunity of 375% of base salary for the CEO (150% Annual Bonus and 225% LTIP). 20. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand. [newline] A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. 17. Approve the Remuneration Paid to the Chair and CEO

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. In 2024, Bolloré SE's CEO, Cyrille Bolloré, received a €10 million exceptional bonus tied to the successful completion of the sale of Bolloré Logistics. Although not part of the standard annual incentive plan, this transaction-based award is considered variable remuneration, as it was subject to specific performance conditions. As such there are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed all quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

19. Approve Remuneration Policy of Chair and CEO

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no specific mention of claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

25. Approve grant of free shares (existing or newly issued) to officers and employees of the company or its subsidiaries

Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability. Opposition is recommended.

26. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, opposition is recommended.

13. Approve the Remuneration Report of Corporate Officers

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report of Corporate officers. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

1.02. Re-elect Julie H. Edwards - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Approve Variable Remuneration of members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the cap for the variable remuneration component. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company. [newline] It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 8.370 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid. [newline] Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. 1h.. Elect Ezra Y. Yacob - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. 5.. Shareholder Resolution: Respect Civil Liberties in Advertising Services

Proponent: Oklahoma Tobacco Settlement Endowment Trust, represented by Bowyer Research. Proponent's argument: This shareholder proposal addresses freedom of expression and discrimination in digital advertising, particularly in relation to Amazon's affiliations with external content moderation initiatives. The resolution calls on Amazon to evaluate and report on how it manages risks of discrimination against ad buyers or sellers based on political or religious viewpoints. The proponent argues that Amazon's involvement with the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM) and related initiatives has potentially exposed the company to serious reputational, legal, and ethical risks. The resolution claims: "Amazon colluded with the world's largest advertising buyers... to demonetize platforms... for expressing disfavored political and religious viewpoints". GARM's mission to address "hate speech, bullying and disinformation" is described as a cover for vague and subjective censorship, with platforms judged on their handling of "debated sensitive social issues". It cites GARM's promotion of groups like NewsGuard and Global Disinformation Index, accusing them of labelling mainstream outlets as "disinformation". Specific actions, such as the GARM-coordinated pressure against Joe Rogan and Elon Musk's X, are presented as evidence of partisan bias and censorship pressure. The proponent asserts that these practices persist even after GARM's disbandment in 2024, with the "Big Six" agencies continuing similar policies. They conclude that Amazon's association with such groups may violate antitrust and anti-discrimination laws, and urge the company to "rebuild trust by providing transparency around these policies". The resolution asks Amazon's board to produce a report assessing how it oversees risks related to discrimination against ad buyers and sellers based on political or religious views.

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. Amazon recommends voting against the proposal. The company states that its policies are not designed to influence or suppress political or religious content. Rather, the goal is for "customers to experience relevant and useful ads", and to reach them effectively regardless of platform. "These policies and practices are not intended to promote or demote particular political or religious viewpoints". Amazon emphasizes its commitment to inclusivity, noting that it "serves customers, advertisers, and publishers that reflect a very broad range of viewpoints". The company asserts that it already maintains "robust risk management processes", including the oversight by the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, which manages issues of human rights and ethical practices, and the Audit Committee, which handles broader operational risk assessments. It concludes that its existing governance mechanisms adequately address the concerns raised, and additional reporting is unnecessary.

PIRC Recommendation: The resolution frames complex advertising ecosystem decisions as conspiratorial ("colluded with... agencies") and treats voluntary brand alignment decisions as ideologically motivated suppression. In doing so, it advances a narrow conception of "free speech" that equates the lack of monetization with censorship, despite no legal or operational requirement for companies to fund or platform all content. The proposal is based on a selective and ideological reading of corporate responsibility and misrepresents Amazon's advertising strategy as politically motivated. The company already has appropriate oversight structures, and further reporting on this basis would entrench false narratives, distract from legitimate governance, and risk misuse of shareholder proposals for ideological agendas. Opposition is recommended.

1d.. Re-Elect Charles Meyers - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. [newline] The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. As the Chair of this committee is not up for election, accountability falls to the Chair of the Board. Furthermore, the individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the Chair of this committee is not up for election, accountability falls to the Chair of the Board. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the People and Compensation Committee and member of the Governance Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the People and Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation. [newline]At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. Since the Chair of the Governance Committee will only assume the role at this year's AGM, responsibility for the lack of disclosure rests with the committee member holding the longest tenure. 1j.. Elect Dirk Van de Put - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. [newline] The company has been subject to litigation during the year under review and while no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about the potential financial and reputational impacts of this litigation on the company. As the new Chair of the Audit Committee will assume the role after the AGM, responsibility for risk oversight rests with the CEO. [newline] Opposition is recommended.

5. Re-elect Simon Burke - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Additionally, the level of gender diversity on the board is below 40%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. 3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The proposed changes include the removal of the risk management metric from the STI scorecard, with a corresponding increase in the weighting of the customer metric. For the LTI scorecard, the operating margin metric is proposed to be removed, with its 25% weighting redistributed-20% to the earnings per share (EPS) metric and 5% to the relative total shareholder return (TSR) metric. Additionally, the TSR comparator group is proposed to be narrowed from the FTSE 250 excluding investment trusts to also exclude companies in the basic resources (mining), oil, and gas sectors. The total potential variable pay is capped at 400% of salary, which exceeds the deemed acceptable limit of 200% and is considered excessive. Annual Bonus performance is evaluated based on a combination of financial, strategic, and personal targets, with payouts split evenly-50% in cash and 50% deferred in shares. The LTIP award has a performance period of three years, which is not regarded as sufficiently long-term, although a two-year holding requirement for vested shares is viewed positively. Dividend equivalents may be accrued on unvested shares, which misaligns executive and shareholder interests, as only the latter must subscribe for shares to receive dividends. Malus and clawback provisions are applicable to all forms of variable pay. [newline] Rating: ACC. Based on the rating abstention is recommended.

Under the 2025 remuneration policy, the requirement to defer one-third of the annual bonus into shares has been removed for Executive Directors who have met the shareholding guideline; however, the deferral still applies where the guideline has not been met, with shares vesting after two years. The cap on Executive Directors' benefits allowance has also been removed. The total maximum variable remuneration opportunity is 500% of salary (Annual Bonus: 200%, LTIP: 300%), which is considered excessive. Annual Bonus performance measures include financial, strategic, operational, ESG, or personal targets. LTIP performance measures, typically assessed independently over three years, include Relative TSR, Absolute TSR, and average Scope 1 & 2 CO₂ emissions intensity, with 25% vesting at threshold and 100% at maximum. Although the performance period is three years, a two-year post-vesting holding requirement applies, extending the time horizon to five years. Malus and clawback provisions apply to both bonus and LTIP. Executive Directors must build and maintain a shareholding of 200% of salary and retain at least 50% of post-tax vested shares until compliant, with the guideline continuing to apply for two years post-employment unless the Committee decides otherwise. Rating: ADB, therefore opposition is recommended.

15. Authorise Share Repurchase

Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager, nor a company secretary in the employ of the fund manager), we would like to see a public statement: - addressing whether any part of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the total costs as in the Key Investor information Document - 'KID'), - setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and - setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets, - setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

On this basis, abstention is recommended.

The company are proposing a Rule 9 waiver, which will exempt Martin Vohánka, David Holy, Tomáš Svatoň and Pascal Guyot (the Concert Party) from the requirement of the City Code that they make an offer for the entire share capital of the company. If the Company were to repurchase from persons other than the concert party all the ordinary shares for which it is seeking authority, their interest would increase from 52.97% to 57.75% of the issued share capital. The [share buy back / tender] linked to this proposal will mean that the [controlling/significant] shareholder becomes a [majority/controlling] shareholder and therefore this requested waiver is not supported, given its impact on the governance of the company by minority shareholders.

19. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand. [newline] A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. 4.. Amend the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation to Limit the Liability of Certain Officers as Permitted by Delaware Law

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

25. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. ENDEAVOUR MINING PLC AGM - 22-05-2025

13. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) increase our shareholding policies from 300% to 450% of base salary, ii) Recruitment: Introduction of the exception for the Remuneration Committee to grant awards in the recruitment of the Executive without shareholders approval and iii) All legacy arrangement are removing.[newline] Annual Bonus is paid 50% in cash and 50% deferred to shares for a two-year period which is in line with best practice. It is noted that both the Annual Bonus and the Long-Term Incentive Awards have non-financial performance measures which is welcomed. However, concerns are raised for the remuneration policy since total variable pay could reach 600% of the salary which is deemed excessive since is higher than 200%. Performance period for the LTIP award is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two-year holding period applies which is welcomed. Dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. There are concerns that annual bonus targets include health and safety targets, when ensuring the health and safety of colleagues should be a bare minimum and Executives should not be financially incentivised for achieving this. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.[newline] Rating BDC. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

13. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Additional Tier 1 Contingent Equity Conversion Notes

It is proposed to issue additional Tier 1 capital bonds, at an interest rate to be determined with reference to market interest rates. [newline] The use of Tier 1 capital bonds are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. Such instrument are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

15. Re-appoint KPMG as the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.59% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.18% on a three-year aggregate basis. 5. Re-elect Philip Broadley - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Whistleblowing Champion. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

16. Approve the Convatec Group Omnibus Incentive Plan

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Convatec Group Omnibus Incentive Plan. The Omnibus Plan is intended to replace the Long-Term Incentive Plan 2016, the Share Plan 2016 and the Deferred Bonus Plan 2016 (collectively, the "2016 Plans") which are due to expire in 2026. All employees of the Group (including Executive Directors) will be eligible to participate in the Omnibus Plan at the discretion of the Remuneration Committee. Awards under the Omnibus Plan may take the form of, or any combination of: (a) an option to acquire the Company's shares at a nil/nominal or market value exercise price (an "Option"); (b) a conditional right to receive Company shares (a "Conditional Award"); (c) an award of restricted Company shares ("Restricted Shares"); (d) a stock appreciation right (a "SAR"); or (e) a right to receive a cash payment calculated by reference to the market value of the Company's shares (a "Phantom Award"), at the discretion of the Remuneration Committee. Awards will be subject to continued employment. The vesting of Awards may also be subject to the satisfaction of any applicable performance conditions or other conditions. The Remuneration Committee will set the vesting date or dates for Awards when they are granted. Vesting of Awards may also be conditional upon: (a) participants having complied with all regulatory and legal requirements applicable to them or in connection with the Award granted; (b) participants having provided any relevant information and made relevant elections or obtained any necessary dealing consents as reasonably requested by the Company; and (c) participants accepting all relevant terms of the Award, including, for example, provisions relating to malus and clawback. The Remuneration Committee has discretion to impose a post-vesting holding period ("Holding Period") of such length as it determines in respect of vested shares or unexercised Awards. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries, therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. CEO salary increased by 2.9% for the year under review and is in line with the increase of the workforce salary which increased by 6.4%. The CEO salary is on the lower quartile of the competitor group.
Balance: Total variable pay for the year under review is 404% of the salary (Annual Bonus: 199.2% of the salary, LTIP: 204.8% of the salary) and is considered excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to the average employee is considered excessive at 69:1. PIRC consider appropriate a ratio of 20:1
Rating: AD. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote: Oppose

Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 1.8

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) Increase in amount of long-term incentives permissible under the Remuneration Policy, to address gaps in competitiveness against a global comparator group, ii) Evolution of the structure of the long-term incentive awards through a combination of Performance Shares (PSP) linked to stretching Convatec performance targets, and Restricted Stock Units (RSU) linked to continued employment with the business and iii) Increase the level of shareholding requirement under the Remuneration Policy for the CEO to 500% of salary.
Total variable pay could reach 725% of the salary for the CEO and 525% of the salary for the CFO and is deemed excessive since is higher than 200%. On the Annual Bonus one third of the Bonus is deferred to shares for three years, this is not considered adequate. It would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On the LTIP award, there are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. Performance period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two-year holding period applies which is welcomed. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all variable pay.
Rating: ADC. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

Results: For: 67.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose: 33.0

15. Authorise Share Repurchase

Authority is sought to repurchase up to 10% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks, we would like to see a public statement from the Board: - addressing whether any part of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the total costs as in the Key Investor Information Document - 'KID'), - setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and - setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets, - setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

1f.. Re-elect Edward P. Decker - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to commit to net zero emissions by 2050. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the board. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 6.. Shareholder Resolution: Respect Civil Liberties in Advertising Services

Proponent Shareholder: American Family Association
Proponent's argument: The proponent expresses concern that Verizon may be participating in discriminatory advertising practices that negatively affect ad buyers and sellers on the basis of their political or religious views. The proposal highlights Verizon's involvement in the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM), a powerful industry group that aimed to enhance "brand safety" by discouraging advertising on platforms considered to promote "hate speech" or "disinformation." The proponent argues that GARM and similar initiatives have enabled vague, subjective standards that disproportionately censor dissenting or conservative viewpoints. GARM's disbandment after public scrutiny and litigation is cited as evidence of its controversial nature. The proponent links these policies to broader industry practices maintained by major advertising agencies that allegedly limit freedom of expression and religious liberty. This raises potential legal and reputational risks under anti-discrimination and antitrust laws. The proposal requests a board-level evaluation and public report on how Verizon manages and mitigates the risks of discriminatory behavior in advertising services based on political or religious viewpoints. The goal is to increase transparency and ensure that Verizon is not misusing its advertising power or infringing on civil liberties under the guise of brand safety.
Company's response: Verizon urges shareholders to vote against the proposal, asserting that its advertising decisions are grounded in legitimate business considerations-not in political or religious bias. The company emphasizes that protecting its brand reputation is critical, and brand safety policies are designed accordingly to avoid association with harmful content, not to suppress particular viewpoints. Verizon selects advertising platforms based on effectiveness, budget, audience reach, and brand impact-not ideology. The company's Code of Conduct explicitly prohibits discrimination and applies across all business operations. Employees receive training to reinforce these standards. Verizon maintains that its commitment to non-discrimination is already embedded in its culture and operations and that it is transparent about its policies. The Board contends that the report requested by the proponent would not add value, as current practices already align with ethical principles and shareholder interests. As such, the company sees no need for further reporting on this issue.
PIRC analysis: While the proposal claims to support viewpoint neutrality, its true focus appears to be on embedding political and religious ideology-particularly conservative social views-into the company's advertising decisions. The resolution aims to portray the exclusion of harmful or polarizing content as ideological discrimination. This conflates brand safety with censorship. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company includes viewpoints that some customers may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be acceptable. The company already maintains content-neutral policies to avoid association with divisive or harmful material. Requiring explicit protections for ideological diversity in advertising risks forcing the platforming of content that undermines inclusivity, factual integrity, or public trust. Embedding such a mandate into ad oversight may inadvertently introduce bias and compromise the effectiveness of the company's current brand safety and non-discrimination commitments. The proposal ultimately risks shifting ad policy from protecting brand integrity to arbitrating ideology-an outcome that could increase reputational and legal exposure rather than mitigate it. Opposition is recommended.

WATERS CORPORATION AGM - 22-05-2025

1a.. Elect Flemming Ornskov - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and member of the Compensation Committee.
The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Nominating and Corporate Governance committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. 1a.. Re-elect Kenneth J. Bacon - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed. [newline] Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. 8.. Amend the Third Amended and Restated Certificate of Incorporation to exculpate certain officers as permitted by Delaware law.

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1g.. Re-Elect Larry Merlo - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure The highest-paid director for the year under review was the Executive Chair Lucio Genovese. All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The Executive Chair's base salary was increased on 1 July 2024 from USD 475,000 per annum to USD 825,000 per annum, amounting to an increase in salary of 173.68% and it is noted that an additional fee of USD 325,000 was added to his remuneration in the year under review to reflect the time commitments of the role. This would be vastly excessive in normal circumstances, however, given Mr. Genovese's rapidly changing responsibilities in the year under review, there is adequate justification for this increase. The Executive Chair's salary is in the median of PIRC's comparator group. Balance No variable pay was made to the Executive Chair in the year under review. The Executive Chair's pay ratio was 75:1, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 20:1. The Company has stated that this is due to the majority of the workforce being employed in a low compensation market, while the Executive Chair is employed in a mature compensation market. Rating: AC Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

7. Re-elect Lucio Genovese - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair and Chair of the Nomination Committee. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. The level of gender diversity on the board is below 40%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nomination Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, this Director received significant opposition of over 10% at the previous year's AGM, and there has been no statement explaining how this situation was addressed with shareholders. 8. Advisory vote on the UK Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate. [newline] Rating: AD. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

9. Advisory vote on the Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) MIP: Maximum opportunity increased from 140% to 200% of base salary, ii) The Remuneration Committee will remove the requirement for deferral of 50% of any MIP award into shares so long as the in-employment shareholding requirement is met by the CEO and iii) increase of the in-employment shareholding requirement from 300% of the salary to 450% of base salary.[newline] Total potential variable pay could reach 530% of the salary for the CEO and is considered excessive since it is higher than 200%. The MIP (Management Incentive Plan) is paid 50% in cash and 50% is deferred to shares for three years, however, under the new policy if the in-employment shareholding requirement is met, then the MIP will be paid in cash. This is not considered adequate it is preferable for annual incentives as the MIP to be paid 50% in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three year. The Performance Share Plan (PSP) has financial and non-financial KPI's as performance measures which is welcomed. The vesting period is three years which is not considered sufficiently long-term, however, a two year holding period applies, which is welcomed. Concerns are raised since Dividend accrual is not prohibited. Such rewards mislead shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Malus and claw back provisions apply to all variable pay. [newline] Rating: BDD. Based on the rating an oppose vote is recommended.

FRESENIUS SE AGM - 23-05-2025

10. Amend Articles: Authorise virtual Annual General Meetings to be held

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

1b.. Re-elect Robert A. Bradway - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

6. Amend Articles: Limit the liability of Certain Officers

It is proposed that the Certificate of Incorporation, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. Governance There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company. There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues. The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness. Disclosure The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured. The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios. The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting. PIRC Analysis Despite some best practice at the level of governance, there does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.

Proponent Shareholder: The National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The proponent urges Merck's board to revisit and consider eliminating Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) milestones from executive compensation programs. Citing the 2023 U.S. Supreme Court decision in Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard, the proposal argues that corporate DEI initiatives are facing increasing legal scrutiny and litigation risk. It highlights that many universities and corporations have scaled back or ended DEI programs due to concerns about potential violations of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. The proponent asserts that Merck's DEI-based incentive structures such as allocating 10% of the executive scorecard to "sustainability" goals that include employee engagement and inclusion create discriminatory outcomes and expose the company to reputational and legal risk. Merck's DEI initiatives include tailored leadership development programs for specific demographic groups, including Black, Latino, LGBTQ+, and female employees. The proponent claims these programs could be viewed as exclusionary or as operating racial or identity based preferences. It argues that incentive structures tied to such programs could appear to enforce informal hiring quotas or set asides, a practice increasingly vulnerable to legal challenge. In light of this, the proposal requests that Merck's Compensation and Management Development Committee evaluate the current executive incentive guidelines and assess whether DEI linked targets should be removed to mitigate potential risk.

Company's response: Merck's Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that it is unnecessary because the Compensation and Management Development (C&MD) Committee already performs the oversight functions the proposal seeks. The Committee annually reviews the design, metrics, and weighting of performance measures in the executive compensation framework to ensure alignment with shareholder interests and corporate strategic objectives. The Company Scorecard, used to determine annual cash incentives, includes a 10% weighting for sustainability related goals that encompass enabling global access to healthcare and fostering employee engagement and inclusion elements that reflect long-term value creation. These metrics are regularly evaluated and are based on operational outcomes and employee feedback, including survey data. The Board emphasises that the Scorecard metrics are not arbitrary, but rather directly tied to the Company's strategic priorities, including R&D pipeline development and global health impact. Moreover, the CD&A section of Merck's proxy filing outlines the exact components and evaluation of these metrics, ensuring full transparency for shareholders. The Board rejects the assertion that these programs are discriminatory, instead affirming that they promote inclusion and strategic growth. In the Board's view, the current compensation structure is appropriate, well governed, and aligned with best practices, rendering the proposal redundant and misaligned with Merck's values and objectives.

PIRC analysis: This proposal seeks to remove DEI related milestones from executive pay incentives based on the premise that such initiatives expose the company to legal, reputational, and governance risks. However, the underlying assumption-that DEI programs are inherently discriminatory or pose value destroying risks is not supported by the prevailing body of research and business practice. A wide range of evidence links diversity and inclusion to enhanced corporate performance, innovation, talent attraction and retention, and better stakeholder engagement. Rather than constituting a governance failure, integrating DEI into performance incentives reflects good governance practice by aligning executive accountability with long-term value creation and social responsibility goals. The proposal's framing appears ideologically driven, positioning DEI as a liability, which risks undermining board discretion and management autonomy in setting human capital strategy. There is no evidence that Merck's DEI-linked compensation mechanisms violate applicable laws or governance principles. On the contrary, the company's approach-including regular board oversight and transparency through its Scorecard demonstrates alignment with its strategic goals and responsiveness to stakeholder expectations. Supporting this proposal could send the wrong signal about shareholder priorities, potentially discouraging beneficial DEI practices and weakening commitments to workplace equity and inclusion. For these reasons, opposition to the resolution is recommended.

7.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Civil Liberties in Advertising Services

Proponent Shareholder: The Bahnsen Family Trust dated July 14, 2003

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Merck's Board produce a report evaluating how it oversees potential risks related to discrimination in advertising practices based on political or religious viewpoints. The proponent argues that Merck's participation in advertising consortia such as the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM) may have contributed to the exclusion or demonetization of certain media platforms and voices, potentially exposing the company to legal and reputational risks. GARM, supported by major global advertisers, was accused of enforcing vague content standards and promoting the deplatforming of views labeled as "disinformation" or "insensitive," which the proponent sees as a threat to free expression and ideological diversity. The proposal points to high-profile controversies, such as platform boycotts and de-ranking of news outlets, to argue that such practices have contributed to public backlash and litigation-particularly following GARM's dissolution after legal action from X (formerly Twitter). The proponent contends that Merck, by aligning its advertising strategies with these entities, may have exposed itself to antitrust and anti-discrimination risks. A report is therefore requested to ensure that Merck is not complicit in censorship or bias and is safeguarding civil liberties in its advertising decisions, particularly regarding the treatment of buyers and sellers based on protected viewpoints.

Company's response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that it would be costly, time-consuming, and redundant given Merck's existing governance structures and disclosures. The company affirms its commitment to responsible marketing practices rooted in ethics and compliance with relevant laws, including those governing healthcare advertising, antitrust, and competition. Merck highlights its Code of Conduct, regular compliance training, and oversight by the Audit Committee as mechanisms that ensure its advertising decisions adhere to regulatory and ethical standards. The Board also cites Merck's robust Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) process, which identifies and manages emerging business risks and aligns risk oversight with corporate values and ethics. In the Board's view, these systems sufficiently cover the scope of the concerns raised by the proposal. It emphasizes that the Audit Committee monitors compliance across the organization and regularly reports to the Board, including updates from the chief ethics and compliance officer. Furthermore, Merck's 2023/2024 Impact Report outlines its standards for marketing conduct. The Board concludes that the requested report would not yield meaningful additional insights or shareholder value and instead could divert resources from core business priorities. Therefore, the proposal is deemed unnecessary and not in the best interests of the company or its shareholders.

PIRC analysis: While transparency around advertising policies and political neutrality is important, this resolution appears to be ideologically motivated and misrepresents existing governance and oversight structures. The proposal reflects a broader campaign from politically aligned groups aiming to pressure companies to roll back established policies on brand safety, misinformation, and platform standards under the guise of protecting civil liberties. The resolution does not focus on enhancing governance or improving disclosure but instead seeks to reframe corporate advertising decisions as evidence of systemic bias against certain viewpoints. There is no substantive evidence that Merck has engaged in discriminatory advertising practices or violated civil rights or antitrust law. Moreover, Merck already provides extensive information about its ethical marketing policies, board oversight of risk and compliance, and commitment to lawful and responsible corporate conduct. Requiring a new report based on speculative claims would divert resources and encourage unnecessary politicization of operational decisions. Instead of improving shareholder value or transparency, the resolution could set a precedent for ideological interference in routine business practices. A vote against the proposal is recommended.

18. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Securities Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. 3. Amend Article 30 and 33

The board seeks to approve amendments to the Articles of Association as follows: [newline] Article 30: Employee and Director Compensation. This article is amended to reinforce the company's profit-sharing mechanism. It clarifies that if the company reports earnings in a given year, at least 3% of profits shall be allocated to employee compensation and no more than 1% to director compensation. In the event of accumulated losses, they must be offset before any distributions are made. The amendment introduces a new clause specifying that no less than 4% of the total employee compensation must be distributed to non-executive employees. It also explicitly defines non-executive employees by government regulations and tax incentive guidelines. The board states that the changes are intended to enhance fairness in profit distribution and align with updated labour and tax policy initiatives promoted by Taiwan's Financial Supervisory Commission. [newline] Article 33: Record of Amendments. This article is updated solely to reflect the latest revision date of the Articles of Association. [newline] The amendment to Article 30 requires that at least 4% of employee compensation be allocated to non-executive staff, in line with regulatory guidance. However, the allocation mechanism remains fully at the board's discretion, lacks transparency, and allows inclusion of subsidiary employees, potentially diluting the benefit to core staff. No performance metrics are disclosed. In addition, non-executive directors receive a variable component on top of their fixed fees, which may compromise their independence by aligning them with short-term interests rather than long-term oversight. REPSOL SA AGM - 29-05-2025

10. Delegation of Powers to Issue Convertible Securities, Set Conversion Terms, Increase Capital, and Exclude Pre-Emptive Rights

The tenth resolution proposes delegating to the Board of Directors the authority to issue, over the next five years, up to EUR 8.4 billion in fixed-income securities, which may be convertible into or exchangeable for Repsol shares, including the issuance of warrants. The Board would also have the power to set the terms of conversion or exchange, increase share capital as needed, and exclude pre-emptive rights if justified in the company's interest. Additionally, the Board is authorised to guarantee issuances by Repsol's subsidiaries, and this new delegation would replace the previous authorization granted in 2021 to the extent it remains unused. 17. Approval of Three Additional New Cycles of the Long-Term Incentive Program

This proposal seeks approval for the creation of three new four-year cycles (Seventh: 2026 to 2029, Eighth: 2027 to 2030, and Ninth: 2028 to 2031) under its Long-Term Incentive Program. The Incentives will be paid partly in cash and partly in performance shares (or entirely in shares for the CEO), based on the level of achievement of specific performance objectives. The total maximum amount allocated across the three cycles is EUR 148 million. The main new proposal here is to extend the program's timeline by adding these three overlapping cycle. The program sets a cap for the CEO's incentive at no more than 120% of his fixed annual salary at the start of each cycle, ensuring it remains below a 200% limit. However, no specific cap is stated for other executives participating in the program, although their incentives are split between cash and shares depending on their role. [newline] Although the framework outlines the use of performance measures, it defers the setting of measurable thresholds to a later stage; the exact performance targets and quantifiable thresholds have not yet been disclosed and will be determined annually by the Board of Directors. Accordingly, abstention is recommended.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. [newline]The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 5.. Amend Articles: Approve an amendment to our Restated Certificate of Incorporation to allow for exculpation of officers as permitted by Delaware law.

It is proposed to approve an amendment to the Restated Certificate of Incorporation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. [newline] While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Furthermore, the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns regarding the Company's sustainability policies and practice. 1D.. Re-Elect Michael Garnreiter - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Audit Committee, member of the Compensation Committee and member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Furthermore, it is considered that each of these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

3. Amend Articles: 16, 17 and 26

The Board of Directors seeks to approve amendments to the Articles of Incorporation to align with updated regulatory requirements, as follows: [newline] Articles 16 and 17 – Board Structure and Tenure. By the "Operation Directions for Compliance with the Establishment of Board of Directors by TWSE Listed Companies and the Board's Exercise of Powers" issued by the Taiwan Stock Exchange (TWSE), the Company proposes to revise Articles 16 and 17 of its Articles of Incorporation. The board states that this aim to clearly define the number of Independent Directors to be appointed to the Board; introduce restrictions on the number of consecutive terms Independent Directors may serve, to enhance the independence of the Board, improve oversight functions, and support a well-balanced governance structure that complies with best practices in corporate governance. [newline] Article 26: Inclusion of New Provisions for Non-Executive Employee Compensation. In compliance with Article 14, Paragraph 6 of the Securities and Exchange Act, and following the Financial Supervisory Commission's Order No. 1130385442 (dated November 8, 2024), as well as the Ministry of Economic Affairs' regulations on tax preferences for wage increases in small and medium enterprises, the Company proposes to introduce a specific provision regarding the allocation of employee compensation. Key elements of the amendment include: Defining non-executive employees as those whose average monthly salary is TWD 63,000 or less; stipulating that no less than 25% of the total annual employee compensation be reserved for non-executive employees. [newline] The amendment to Article 26 requires allocating 2–3.5% of annual profit to employee compensation, with at least 25% reserved for non-executive staff earning TWD 63,000 or less. While the policy aligns with regulatory goals on wage equity, the distribution lacks transparency and remains entirely at the Board's discretion. No performance metrics or disclosure on eligible recipients are provided, and inclusion of affiliate employees may dilute the benefit to FENC's core workforce. Opposition is recommended due to governance and accountability concerns.

Of this amount, at least 50% must be distributed to non-executive employees. A maximum of 0.5% of the profit may be allocated to Directors as remuneration. Compensation to employees may be delivered in cash or shares, and may include employees of affiliate companies, as determined by the Board. The remuneration to Directors shall be paid in cash. These changes are introduced in response to the revised Article 14(6) of the Securities and Exchange Act. [newline] Article 27: Record of Amendments. [newline] The amendment to Article 24 requires that at least 1% of annual profit be allocated to employee compensation, with at least 50% of that directed to non-executive staff. While the opportunity for shareholders to approve intra group loans is welcomed, there are reservations about the potential use of this authority for loans to associates, as allowed for by these sections of the Act. [newline]The proposal holds the likelihood of raising potential conflicts of interest between the company and its associates or employees. We consider this to be an excessive premium that may not represent a prudent use of shareholder capital. 6.7. Amendment Of The Regulations For The General Shareholders Meeting: Forms Of Holding The Meeting And Special Rules Thereof: Inclusion Of A Title XI With Articles 49 To 61

This resolution adds Title XI, setting out rules for different formats of meetings, such as in-person, remote, or hybrid formats. It defines special provisions for virtual attendance, remote voting, and participation to ensure accessibility and equality regardless of how a meeting is held. It differs from prior items by focusing solely on the form of meeting rather than content or participation rules. [newline] The new rules would explicitly allow the Board of Directors to decide to convene a meeting that is held entirely remotely, without a physical gathering, as long as it complies with the legal requirements for guaranteeing shareholder participation, voting rights, and transparency. It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

2.1. Elect Nombulelo Moholi - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Nominations Committee and member of the Human Resources and Remuneration Committee. [newline] The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. LIFE SCIENCE REIT PLC AGM - 03-06-2025

14. Authorise Share Repurchase

Authority is sought to repurchase up to 14.99% of the issued share capital. The authority would expire at the next AGM. Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager, nor a company secretary in the employ of the fund manager), we would like to see a public statement: - addressing whether any part of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the total costs as in the Key Investor information Document - 'KID'), - setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and - setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets, - setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

COGNIZANT TECHNOLOGY SOLUTIONS CORP AGM - 03-06-2025

1a.. Elect Zein Abdalla - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Governance and Sustainability Committee and member of the Compensation and Human Capital Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Sustainability Committee and the Compensation and Human Capital Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. [newline]The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Governance and Sustainability Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. [newline]Furthermore, as the Chair of the Governance and Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended. [newline]Lastly, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Governance and Sustainability committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

1h.. Elect Michael Patsalos-Fox - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Compensation and Human Capital Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Similarly, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation and Human Capital Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 3.. Appoint the Auditors

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 8.09% of audit fees during the year under review and 15.29% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
